

Corps gets go-ahead for Rte. 209

WASHINGTON — A House appropriations subcommittee has instructed the Army Corps of Engineers to proceed immediately with the relocation of Rte. 209, and has put up about $5 million to begin the job.

Although the bill still must clear the full Appropriations Committee, the House, and then the Senate, supporters are confident that the toughest hurdle has now been cleared, and the funds for 209 will not be knocked out of the final bill.

The subcommittee bill actually will not be made public for at least another week, but two sources confirmed that it contains the order to start building the new road.

They could not confirm the dollar figure, but indicated it represents the maximum amount the Army Engineers could use to acquire land and begin construction during the fiscal year beginning next month, which is about $5 million. These sources gave full credit to Rep. Joseph M.

McDade, R-10 for persuading the subcommittee members to accept the 209 appropriation, which was not in the original budget.

They said McDade went to each member individually, described the hazardous condition of the road and the tremendous federal presence in the area, and convinced them that the federal government had the obligation to begin the relocation at once.

The subcommittee bill explicitly points out that the funds are to be used only for the relocation of Rte. 209, and not for any other aspect of the Tocks Island project.

"Route 209 has 300 per cent more traffic than the national average of traffic on roads of the same class, and the accident rate is substantially higher than the national average," the bill states.

"Therefore, the Corps is urged to proceed with the land acquisition and the relocation of Route 209. No funds are included for any other aspect of the Tocks Island Lake Project pending the conclusion of the study which is currently underway," the bill reads.

The federal funds provided in the measure affect about 23 of the 28 miles of Rte. 209 which run either through the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, or the land that would be submerged if the dam is built.

The last five or so miles of 209, where it connects with Interstate 80 at Marshalls Creek, are not considered part of the federal enclave, which means the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation will have to pay to relocate that stretch.

However, PennDOT Secretary Jacob Kassab has promised repeatedly that the state will put up its share of money if the federal government gets the ball rolling with a "massive infusion" of funds, which it now has.

The appropriation of funds for Rte. 209 — assuming the entire bill clears Congress and is not vetoed by President Ford — means the treacherous 24-foot wide road will be replaced with a four-lane highway connecting Interstates 80 and 84.

McDade could not comment on the 209 appropriation since it has not officially been made public yet. In his testimony two months ago before the Public Works appropriations subcommittee, however, he called the road "the most dangerous highway in the country."

Four stages ready

The Army Corps of Engineers estimates that 80 per cent of the design work and engineering studies are complete, and that construction contracts could be let for four of the five stages of the road.

Some of the land along the relocation route which still must be purchased before construction can begin lies in what are known as "split tracts."

That means part of the property is in the dam site, and must be purchased by the Army Corps, and the other part is in the national park region, and must be purchased by the National Park Service.

The Park Service already has enough money available to buy its share of the land. If the Public Works appropriations bill clears Congress as expected, the Army Corps will also have enough money to purchase the remaining tracts and move forward with construction of the new road.

House votes credit for energy savers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, picking through what is left of its energy bill, approved tax credits Friday for those who buy electric cars and use solar energy to heat and cool their homes.

Then, with one member expressing doubt the bill will ever become law in its present form, the legislators quit work in midafternoon and will not get back to the bill until Tuesday.

One major item remaining to be decided is a proposal to tax business use of fuels. The final form of some minor provisions also is unresolved.

As the day's session broke up, Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said: "My guess is that the bill stands a good chance of never becoming law."

Frenzel is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which tailored the legislation as an alternative to President Ford's program of higher oil import tariffs and other measures designed to reduce fuel consumption.

Ford and other administration officials expressed willingness Friday to make some concessions on the issue, but made it clear they feel the House bill — now stripped of gasoline tax increases designed to cut consumption — is unsatisfactory.

Before starting their weekend, House members turned down proposed tax credits for fuel-efficient cars and for buying a wood-burning stove, along with an attempt to triple the bill's 30 per cent credit for the elderly poor who insulate their homes.

For the second day in a row, Ford discussed the energy issue with congressional leaders of both parties and this time indicated some willingness to compromise with Congress. House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said afterward "there was no question but there was a conciliatory air."

Press Secretary Ron Nessen quoted Ford as telling the leaders "It's mandatory that we move on energy. We just can't wait for a crisis and then move. Time is running out."

The House, which late Thursday approved a provision to penalize carmakers whose products use excessive amounts of gasoline, voted 73 to 31 Friday to provide a tax credit of up to $750 for purchase of an electric car.

Members then approved 244 to 132 a tax credit of up to $2,000 for the first $8,000 spent in solar heating-cooling equipment in a home.

Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., objecting to those two "goodies," said: "It's Christmas again."

Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., sponsor of the electric car amendment, said it "will eliminate the need for many second cars and gas-guzzlers" by encouraging use of the battery-operated vehicles for short trips.

The House Wednesday rejected proposed increases in gasoline taxes that Democrats had considered the heart of the energy legislation. Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., said all that is left of the measure now is "a cream puff."

After Friday's White House meeting, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said the President is "sticking with his own" energy plan, but that Ford told the leaders: "If there is a middle ground tell me what it is and we'll see what can be worked out."

Ford signs SS, veterans aid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has signed a $15 billion money bill providing long overdue aid to veterans and Social Security pensioners — and canceling a potential bonanza of summer unemployment benefits for teachers.

Ford's signature on the appropriations bill will mean about 10,000 Monroe County residents can expect additional income during the remainder of June or sometime in July, according to Ray J. Little, manager of the Stroudsburg Social Security office.

Little said Friday the bill signed by the President contains funds for the special $50 rebate checks to all Social Security beneficiaries, railroad retirement beneficiaries and those receiving supplemental security income in the county.

Local beneficiaries can expect their checks in the mail after June 17, Little said, adding that those who do not receive their payments should begin reporting the non-receipt after July 31.

White House spokesmen announced Friday that Ford had signed a supplemental money bill urgently needed to pay half a million veterans the educational benefits due them since June 1.

In addition, the measure funds $50 bonuses for 33 million Social Security beneficiaries, provides $5 billion for unemployment programs, money for the food stamp program and $2 billion in cost-of-living pay raises for military personnel and civilian federal workers.

But it also carried some fine print specifically designed to plug a legal loophole in the federal unemployment legislation Ford signed in December — a loophole that has encouraged thousands of school teachers in at least 10 states to apply for unemployment benefits during their summer vacations.

The new language amends that law specifically to prohibit such benefits to teachers whose contracts run through the end of the current school year and resume this fall.

The measure includes $256.4 million for veterans compensation, including educational benefits that were due June 1.

Progress toward Mideast peace?

Rabin, Kissinger continue talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger held intensive unscheduled last minute talks here Friday and, in an indication of progress on Middle East peacemaking, decided to continue them on Sunday in New York.

It was the third change in their schedule of meetings.

According to diplomatic sources, the changes reflected progress they are making toward establishing an Israeli basis for resumption of negotiations with Egypt for a new interim agreement on disposition of the Sinai dispute.

According to authoritative sources, Rabin is now weighing the merits of an Israeli withdrawal from the strategically vital mountain passes of Mitla and Gidi, and the ceding of the Abu Rudeis oil field to Egypt.

In return, Israel would require long-term Egyptian agreement to a U.N. presence in the Sinai.

Also currently under discussion between the two diplomats were economic concessions which Israel would demand, among them the right of passage for Israeli cargo through the Suez canal.

Rabin and Kissinger have been in what must to them seem like interminable negotiating sessions.

After staying up late Thursday night for private talks with Kissinger, Rabin on Friday briefed the House International Relations Committee on Israel's conditions for resuming peace talks with Egypt.

In the afternoon he postponed a scheduled 4:30 p.m. departure for two hours to make room for another meeting of an hour or so with Kissinger.

Following Rabin's departure for New York, it was disclosed by the State Department that they had arranged to meet again at 9 a.m. on Sunday at the Waldorf Hotel where Rabin is living during his New York stay.

Rabin can expect searching questions on the reason for the ceaseless rounds of meetings with Kissinger when he appears a little later Sunday on the CBS television interview program "Face the Nation."

For Kissinger the Sunday meeting will not entail additional travel, as he had planned to be there in any case to keep a private engagement.

Dan Pappir, Rabin's spokesman, said the meeting did not mean any specific snags had cropped up in the U.S.-Israeli talks, designed to give President Ford a final basis for retooling U.S. Middle East policy and a new slant on how best to reopen peace talks.

"It has been and is a continual process of exploring and discussing various aspects for the overall problem," Pappir said.

He indicated Rabin's visit has generated no special cause for optimism that concrete progress toward resumed peace talks has been achieved. The visit certainly did not create the bubbling atmosphere of goodwill that came from Ford's recent meeting in Salzburg, with Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

At a news conference Thursday, Rabin said he is willing to participate in new step-by-step talks with Egypt but stressed Egypt would have to give in order to get.

"If there is no change in Egypt's position," he said then, "I doubt if an interim agreement will be achieved."

He indicated Israel's top condition is that Egypt allow Israeli cargo to transit the Suez Canal.

Police protest Fear City

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tourists were welcomed to "Fear City" Friday by off-duty police and firemen who handed them pamphlets emblazoned with a hooded skull and describing New York as a haven for murderers, muggers and rapists.

The "Fear City" campaign was being waged to protest proposed layoffs of more than 6,000 police officers and 3,000 firemen under Mayor Abe Beame's $11.89 billion "crisis" budget.

Beame termed the pamphleteering "a new low in responsibility." Police and firemen at Kennedy International Airport distributed the pamphlets entitled "Welcome to Fear City—A Survival Guide to the City of New York."

"Curtailed the uniformed forces is like taking 6,000 men out of Vietnam," said one police officer at the airport who did not want to be identified.

The pamphlets warned tourists that because of the proposed cutbacks in ranks of police and firemen, they are easy prey for murderers, muggers, rapists. It also cautioned them to stay away from firetrap buildings.

The city won a temporary restraining order in state Supreme Court Thursday night banning distribution of the pamphlets.

Inventory sales boost economy

By United Press International
A record two-month clearance of unsold goods by U.S. business puts the economy in position for a surge in production, according to a government report Friday.

Providing further evidence of the end to the severe business slump, the Commerce Department said manufacturers sold $1.9 billion worth of goods from inventory in April.

The 0.7 per cent decline in inventories pushed stockpiles of all businesses to a seasonally adjusted $267.08 billion from $268.99 billion in March. The April decline followed an identical 0.7 per cent reduction in March and a smaller drop in February.

It was the first time since 1961 stocks declined three months in a row. At the same time, April sales rose 2.1 per cent after falling 2.6 per cent in March.

The heavy two-month inventory liquidation was a prerequisite to an end of the recession. With inventories down and sales up, the nation's industries, operating at about 65 per cent of capacity, were expected to increase output.

Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh said a survey of 2,300 income tax rebate checks deposited in area banks indicates consumers are spending their tax windfalls.

The bank said 85 per cent of the checks were either deposited in checking accounts or exchanged for cash or traveler's checks.

Recent increases in retail sales, including auto sales, also indicate an increase in spending.

Friday, U.S. automakers said early June new car sales came within 6 per cent of matching last year's performance.

Cupid shaft replaces lethal stake

BOSTON (UPI) — It was Friday the 13th. Not only were they lucky to be getting married—they were lucky to be alive.

Six weeks ago Thomas Brennan was in the emergency room of Boston City Hospital with a four-inch-thick fence post sticking out of his chest and back. Friday, cupid's arrow found its mark and he was married in his hospital room.

The bride was Arlene Sickoll, 25, also injured in the May 2 automobile accident in which the 28-year-old Brennan was impaled.

She wore a white cast on her broken arm.

Arlene also wore a full length pink dress, a white shawl and a short pink and white veil. She carried a bouquet of flowers.

Southeast Asian refugees to work Pocono resorts

By FLIP DeLUCA
Pocono Record Reporter

SWIFTWATER — At least four Pocono resorts have agreed to employ 100 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees to help them adjust to American society, according to Emil Wagner, general manager of Mt. Airy Lodge.

Twenty Vietnamese and 14 Cambodians have already arrived and are staying in quarters provided by Mt. Airy. Another 15 refugees are expected to arrive today.

Wagner said he expects to employ about 25 of them at Mt. Airy and has received favorable reaction from Tamiment, Pocono Manor and Fernwood on hiring some of the refugees.

"They will not be taking jobs away from the American people," Wagner emphasized. "They will do what Americans don't want to do."

Wagner said he received a telephone call from the Pentagon asking that he take some of the refugees. He explained Mr. Airy took similar steps in the past by accepting Czechoslovakian and Hungarian refugees and giving them work.

"We seem to hire everyone who's running from somewhere," he added.

He agreed to accept the 100 refugees "and try to place them here and around the Poconos. If they are not wanted (in this area), we'll try to place them somewhere else."

Wagner said the language difference will not be a problem since at least one or two of the refugees already speak English.

He said he hopes the refugees will learn "what America is all about" and that he expects only about 10 or 15 of them to settle in the area with the rest moving on to see friends and relatives.

The Vietnamese and Cambodians are being mixed on purpose, Wagner said, so they learn that everyone works for one purpose. "a better America."

"I feel it is an international law that people have the right to ask for asylum anywhere in the world."

He said the resort is receiving the refugees through Lutheran and Catholic refugee organizations.

Robert Uguccioni, executive director of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, said he is aware of Mt. Airy's action and thinks it's great.

He said Mt. Airy has a tradition of helping refugees and cited the taking in of Czechoslovakians and Hungarians. Uguccioni labeled the action a "humanitarian gesture" and said Mt. Airy "feels a real sympathy to these people."

Uguccioni stressed that the jobs going to the refugees are "over and above" what jobs are normally available so that jobs won't be taken away from anybody.

He said accepting the refugees is "in keeping with the tradition of our area in welcoming people."

Army spy files held illegal info

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department said Friday that documents in an Army counterintelligence microfilm file contained information on civilians that violated regulations.

Army Secretary Howard Callaway said these and a number of additional files—even ones that might have been legal—would be destroyed, and that the officers involved in the "oversight or misunderstanding" might be disciplined.

"It is not the Army's business to know what American citizens are doing except when their activities appear to pose a criminal threat..." Callaway said.

"While the continued presence in the CIAD microfilm files of outdated information concerning American civilians was a serious violation of this policy, I am satisfied on the basis of my investigation that it was an inadvertent one. We are, in any event, taking positive corrective steps to assure that similar violations do not recur."

The files in the Army's

Counter Intelligence Analysis Detachment were the remains of a vast civilian snooping program that began in the mid-1960s on the orders of President Lyndon B. Johnson. It was discontinued under Army regulations issued in June of 1971 and the files were ordered destroyed.

A 1972 investigation by the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights found that the Army kept files on at least 100,000 civilians in the late 1960s, when there were often violent racial incidents and demonstrations against the Vietnam War.

It said the Army acquired "great masses of data," much of it useless. It was so pervasive, a former intelligence officer told the panel, that half the 119 persons involved in a September, 1969, anti-war demonstration at Ft. Carson, Colo., were counter-intelligence agents.

Callaway said that a review of the microfilm files early this year discovered prohibited information. Investigators found:

—Out of the 24,000 documents added to the microfilm library since 1971, a total of 175 involved people or groups which had nothing to do with the Defense Department. It said 23 never should have been filed in the first place. Most of the documents involved foreign intelligence.

—Among the pre-1971 files were 9,200 documents involving people not affiliated with the Defense Department. Callaway said about 2,900 had nothing to do with Army intelligence needs. The others could be considered legitimate. Nevertheless, he said, "all 9,200 documents may be eliminated from the files without significant impairment of the mission of CIAD."

Callaway speculated that the information got into the file properly, involving groups or individuals who opposed the Vietnam War and were either working among GIs or planning demonstrations against military installations. He suggested the material was kept by commanders who thought it had been removed in 1971.

Although the information was not precise, Callaway said, "We do have reasonable assurances that this information was not abused."

Ford endorses aid plan for electric utility industry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford endorsed a joint labor-management plan Tuesday for special tax breaks and other measures to speed up power plant construction, help prevent electricity shortages and provide new jobs as the economy expands.

The utility industry—plagued in recent months with plant delays and cancellations brought on by financial and environmental problems—reacted with delight.

The plan was presented to Ford by the Labor-Management Council headed by Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop. Its tax proposals now will be sent to the House Ways and Means Committee.

"I accept and endorse (the recommendations) because they make a significant contribution in reducing the nation's dependence on oil imports and in conserving scarce natural gas supplies," Ford said in a statement.

"Additionally, an expansion in electric utility construction and production will provide solid, long range employment which will be highly beneficial to the country. An increase in electric utility capacity will also contribute significantly to economic expansion."

Members of the council—which includes AFL-CIO President George Meany, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, General Motors Chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg and U.S. Steel Vice Chairman R. Heath Larry—said the restoration of canceled power plant projects is imperative.

Their plan to ease the problem included granting tax deferrals for reinvested utility dividends, raising the tax credits for utility investments from 10 to 12 per cent, allowing immediate depreciation of utility construction costs and continuing the fast tax write-off of pollution control equipment costs.

Dunlop said he expects labor and industry leaders to "go to Capitol Hill and argue for (the plan) and work for its approval."

Family mourns pet doe

NEW PALTZ, N.Y. (UPI) — A half dozen funeral wreaths covered a grave marked by a homemade wooden tombstone reading, "Here lies Faline LaFalce, 11-month-old doe killed by the Nazi-like tactics of the New York State Conservation Department, June 11, 1975."

Jack LaFalce and his family cried and more than 300 persons, mostly youngsters, stood quietly as the pet deer, apparently killed by fright when state officials confiscated it, was buried in a wooden box Friday on the family's front lawn.

"Although a deer has no soul," said the Rev. George Bartieller, "I think it deserves prayers and a proper burial anyway." He is pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Faline was forcibly taken from the LaFalces Wednesday by state Department of Environmental Conservation agents and state police.

The action, described by En Con as "a case of poor judgment," has created a storm of controversy in this Hudson Valley community. LaFalce called the En Con agents "cold blooded murderers."

State officials were hoping the adverse publicity would die down, but an appearance by LaFalce in New Paltz Town Court Friday night on charges of resisting the state authorities promised to keep Faline's death in the public eye.

Rat trap rests on White House lawn

Nixon blamed again; rats in White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Someone spotted one of the intruders near President Ford's office recently and, down in the White House basement, they say you hear things going bump in the night.

In short, there are rats in the White House. Mice, too. And some disgruntled officials are blaming the whole thing on Richard M. Nixon.

"It all goes back to four years ago when Nixon took that terrible helicopter ride over the Mall," the broad grassy strip that sweeps through downtown Washington and past the White House backyard, said one official involved in executive mansion rat-trapping.

"He looked down from the helicopter and asked an aide what were those unsightly buildings cluttering up the Mall."

They were creaky old Navy munitions sheds thrown up during World War I and, the official agreed, they were a mess.

"But did he know what was inside those old four-story monsters? I guess not. Those buildings were crawling with rodents."

Nixon ordered the buildings torn down, the official said. The job should have taken a year, but with the heat that only a President can put on they fell in six months.

And out came hordes of rodents in search of new quarters.

"Tearing down those Mall buildings and the current excavation for a new building next door on 17th Street has given us a rat invasion," the official said.

Nixon's chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, heard so many rats scurrying to and fro behind his office baseboards he nicknamed the area "the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

The rat-catchers went to work in earnest after Ford entered the White House, using peanut butter as the main lure. They figured, optimistically, they had knocked off their last rodent last October.

But now, a mouse has been seen foraging just down the hall from Ford's office.

Brezhnev calls off Cairo trip

By United Press International
Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev has decided to call off his planned visit to Egypt later this year because of increasingly strained relations between the two nations, authoritative Communist bloc sources in Cairo said Friday.

The sources said Egyptian-Soviet relations had deteriorated sharply in recent weeks, stemming partly from increased Soviet aid to Libya and from Moscow's resentment of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's latest economic liberalization at home.

Moscow regards the economic programs as "deviation" from Socialism and is angered by Sadat's willingness to work through the United States toward Middle East peace, shutting off active Soviet participation, the sources said. "Brezhnev's planned visit to Egypt is off the agenda for this year at least," the sources told UPI correspondent Maurice Guindi.

Brezhnev originally was slated to visit Egypt last January. That trip was postponed because of Brezhnev's illness, but Soviet and Egyptian officials have since acknowledged privately that his ill health also served as a convenient excuse for putting off the visit.

Space ventures readied

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Engineers made preparations Friday for two U.S. space ventures — the launching of a Viking spacecraft to Mars and the manned flight of Apollo-Soyuz.

Ground crews will begin Monday pumping fuel into the Apollo spacecraft and the Saturn 1B launch rocket that will carry three American astronauts aloft July 15th for a historic space rendezvous and linkup with two Russian cosmonauts.

Fueling of the Apollo and the auxiliary second stage booster of the launch rocket will take about five days.

Critical Simon sees oil deficit

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, criticizing Congress for "dawdling and delay" on energy issues, said Friday the United States may have to import 50 per cent of its oil by 1980.

But he said the future may brighten because the United States could not accept "monopolistic practices" of oil exporting countries.

In an address at an international conference of financial experts, Simon said "only the strong leadership of President Ford has averted a total failure of America's energy policies."

"While several members (of Congress) are seeking to develop an effective program, the fact remains the overall performance of the Congress in the energy field over the last several months—and indeed over the last several years—has been marked by unconscionable dawdling and delay," Simon said.

He said U.S. dependence on foreign oil had increased since the 1973 Arab embargo and unless the trend changed "we will be reliant upon foreign sources for as much as 50 per cent of our oil by the end of the decade."

However, he expressed optimism for the future because of a growing awareness in the United States that "we can neither accept nor afford the monopolistic practices" of oil exporting nations.

He said the exporters used "sheer demagoguery" to justify new price increases, scheduled to go into effect October 1.

"In effect," he said, "the oil producers have exacerbated worldwide inflation through their policies and now claim that because of that inflation they are entitled to further price increases."

Simon arrived in Amsterdam from Paris where he attended an international monetary conference.

Some introduction to American way!

OCOE, Fla. (UPI) — Hoping to make them sharecroppers, a Seminole County woman put two families of Vietnamese refugees—11 men, women and children—in a two-bedroom house trailer isolated in an orange grove without electricity, water or toilets, handed them a rifle to shoot intruders, and lectured them on the American way of life.

"If these are the kind of people who are going to do this country any good, they've got to have that pioneer spirit," Mrs. Mary Kenny told reporters Thursday when arrangements were made to move the refugees to better quarters.

Asked about the lack of toilets, the gray haired refugee sponsor replied: "Well, I gave them a snakebite kit and told them to wear boots..."

Reporters for the Orlando Sentinel Star found the refugees sweltering in the trailer in 95-degree heat and arranged with the Red Cross to move the two families to an Orlando motel until they can find new sponsors.

Among the children was Nguyen Thi Thai Hang, a U.S. citizen born at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., just 23 days ago.

What's news

Senate panel extends jobless pay

WASHINGTON — The Senate Finance Committee Friday modified a House-passed bill providing for payment of unemployment compensation to workers who are jobless for up to 65 weeks. Under the Senate panel's change, 65 weeks of benefits would be available after July 1 only in states where unemployment among covered workers exceeded 6 per cent for three months. A full year's benefits would be available in states with between 5 and 6 per cent unemployment and only 39 weeks of benefits would be available in states with less than 5 per cent insured unemployment.

CAB rejects air fare increases

WASHINGTON — The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday rejected fare increases for five of the nation's airlines, including the largest one, but agreed to continue for six more months an existing 4 per cent rate hike originally scheduled to expire June 30. In an 11-page ruling, the CAB expressed concern that the energy crisis has put an end to cheap and plentiful aviation fuel. It said future fuel cost increases may have to be met with reduced service standards rather than higher fares.

Belfast blast kills toddler

BELFAST — A booby-trapped car blew up and killed a 3-year-old girl Friday in a new wave of Northern Ireland bombings that claimed three lives in less than 24 hours. Police said Michelle O'Connor and her father, a barman at a Catholic-owned pub, were getting into the car outside their house when the bomb exploded. It blew off the roof and set fire to the car. The girl was killed instantly. Her father lost an arm.

Girl escapes Niagara fall

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — A woman, beaten and tossed into the Niagara River, hung one-handed at the brink of Horseshoe Falls until she was fished out. Niagara Frontier State Park Police said Mary E. Camann, 20, and Joel Bahr, 19, both of Sanborn N.Y., were attacked by two men Thursday night as they strolled through the Terrapin Point area of the falls. Miss Camann was thrown into the river, where she clung to a rock for 20 minutes until David Dahlbert, 17, a high school football player from Grantsburg, Wis., reached over a restraining railing and pulled her to safety. Miss Camann was listed in fair condition at Niagara Falls Memorial Medical Center, with a fractured skull and lacerations. Police were searching for the couple's attackers.

Murderer — rapist already jailed

PHILADELPHIA — After a month-long search along the East Coast for Charles Stickle, wanted in the rape-burning murders of two 16-year-old suburban girls, authorities learned he already was in jail. Police said Friday Stickle had been in the Mercer County Jail in Trenton, N.J., for the last two weeks under another name on charges of possessing stolen property. The FBI at the time was searching the Miami area. He was stopped May 27 in New Jersey and was found to be a passenger in a stolen car and in possession of a stolen credit card. Stickle, 20, of West Conshohocken, Pa., was wanted in the murders of Tina Statuti and Beverly Roddenbough, both of Conshohocken.

Hathaway sworn as interior chief

WASHINGTON — Former Wyoming Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway, hotly opposed by environmentalists, was sworn in Friday as interior secretary. He promptly urged development of energy resources with care to protect the quality of the nation's air and water. The 50-year-old Republican took the oath of office two days after the Senate confirmed his nomination by a 60-36 vote that followed extensive opposition from Democrats who challenged his record on environmental issues during eight years as governor. In apparent response to those doubting his commitment to environmental protection, Hathaway said the nation had learned that natural resources must be consumed with care but "that we cannot rely on conservation alone to provide the energy security we need" to sustain economic growth.

Space force affecting Pioneer

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — An American spacecraft far out in unexplored space is twisting mysteriously and may have encountered some unknown force in the universe, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration disclosed Friday. The Pioneer 10 spacecraft, now 745 million miles from earth and halfway between the orbits of Jupiter and Saturn "is making some small unexplained orientation changes," an announcement from NASA's Ames Research Center said. An Ames official observed that Pioneer 10, launched in March, 1972, is halfway between the orbits of Jupiter and Saturn, farther out in space than any other probe from earth.

DelVal graduates largest class

MATAMORAS — One-hundred and forty-one students, the largest senior class ever graduated from the Delaware Valley School District, received their diplomas Friday during commencement ceremonies in the high school auditorium.

Class President Julie Jones and commencement speakers Kris Malmquist and Kyle Smith addressed the graduation audience of parents and well-wishers.

Miss Jones said her fellow seniors "should look back with satisfaction ahead with anticipation and evaluate our position in the world."

She complimented the class for its ability to co-operate with the administration throughout the year.

"It is true that we have not been without some problems and dissatisfaction, but I believe that a completely placement society is not a healthy, progressive one," she said.

Smith spoke on the topic "Lean on Me," the class song, and said seniors "should permit those of lesser knowledge and strength to lean on us and learn from us to the point of being self-sustaining."

Malmquist asked "Where do we go from here?" in a speech entitled "New and Broader Horizons."

"It would be unrealistic for us to leave high school thinking we are going to be greeted with open arms by the competitive business world," Malmquist said.

"We are bound to encounter difficulties, but we must make up our minds not to let ourselves be defeated," he added.

Two scholarships were also presented during commencement exercises; the Arthur Kenneth Ridley, Jr. Memorial Award and the Helen Clark Memorial Award, both in the amount of $100.

Albert Ursich received the Arthur Kenneth Ridley, Jr. award for qualities of responsible citizenship and high moral standards and Lynn Moglia received the Helen Clark Memorial Award in honor of Miss Clark who served as a public school nurse in Pike County.

Student bog study authorized

STROUDSBURG — The Junior Conservation Board, a branch of the Monroe County Conservation District, has recently received approval to study the water quality of the Cranberry Bog. The Junior Board is made up of students from high schools throughout the county. The bog which is located near Tannersville is an important natural area which may be in danger for a number of reasons.

Lafayette College is the official caretaker of the bog. The college has shown great interest in the Junior Board's suggestion that they study the Cranberry Creek as it enters and leaves the bog.

Tests will be taken throughout the summer to determine what pollutants, if any, are entering the bog, the amount of water flowing in the stream, water temperature, and many more factors. The results will be used to help identify problems and to determine future use of this area.

A training workshop will be held on Thursday, June 19, starting at 6:00 p.m. at the Stroudsburg High School. William Shearer, Stroudsburg teacher and Junior Board Advisor, will train the students on the use of testing equipment. George Learn, an expert on the Cranberry Bog, will present a slide presentation that will act as an orientation to the Bog.

Historic weather

By NORMAN B. LEHDE

So you think the weather has been "unusual" and that the Spring was lousy and not at all like things were in the "good old days?"

Just in case you find yourself pining too much for yesterday's weatherman, you might ask somebody a few questions about the winter and spring of 1902.

On Monday Feb. 20 of that year a snowstorm started and continued well into the night. A snowfall of some 12 inches, followed by hurricane like winds, reminded the "old timers" of the famed blizzard of 1888.

Roads were blocked in all directions. Tuesday, Feb. 18 was election day. The return judge in Blooming Grove Township, Jack McConnell, found the drifts so bad in his area that he walked on Glen Byre and took the train to Port Jervis enroute to the county seat with the results.

In many places roads were blocked but travel could be made across fields that had blown clear. A Milford undertaker, Charles Wood and his driver, Gabriel Raser, took six hours going from Milford to Edgemere for a funeral, having to shovel out the road in some areas.

Then, with spring not too far away, the rains arrived. With the ground still covered with snow and streams coated with an unusually thick layer of ice, a heavy rain started on Friday morning, Feb. 27. It continued until the following day. In Milford some streets were washed out. Volunteer workers struggled to clear culvers and keep drain ditches flowing. Cellars became ponds.

On the evening of Saturday, Feb. 28, the ice in the river broke. Water came within a few feet of the Milford Bridge.

Farms along the river were flooded and there was some eight to ten feet of water on the River Road. A 12-year-old Matamoras boy, Leroy Kimball, became a victim of the flood, his body later being found by his own father.

This was the flood that many older residents were to compare with the disaster of the summer of 1955. Augmented by the snow and ice, the level of the Delaware River was evidently greater in 1902 but the area did not suffer the damage from raging tributaries that were the mark of the 1955 storm.

So we had a cold April, a hot May and, at the present time, a cool, wet June? Well, they had "unusual weather" in those "Good old days" too.

Voter registration by mail: Will it increase turnout?

By ALAN OTTEN

Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service

WASHINGTON — Congress is about to resume its biennial battle over voter registration by mail. And once again, lawmakers are choosing up sides not on the basis of facts but rather on the basis of just where they think their own political advantage lies.

Liberals, strongly lobbied by organized labor, are pushing a bill to permit people to register by postcard to vote in federal elections, instead of having to appear in person to register.

They are convinced this change will dramatically swell the electorate, largely with liberal-leaning voters. Conservatives, worried that the liberals may be right, are fighting hard to block the measure.

Two years ago, the Senate voted for postcard registration, but the House narrowly rejected the notion. Now the effort is to pass a bill this year in time to apply to the 1976 elections.

The Senate should be able to repeat its 1973 result quite easily, and the heavily Democratic House should be able to follow suit this time. A Ford veto is almost certain, however, and the crunch will come on overriding that veto.

The fascinating thing is the way each side manages to find persuasive arguments in almost the same data.

For example, Wyoming Sen. Gale McGee, the bill's chief

Politics & People

Senate sponsor, notes that "the United States has the worst voting turnout record in the world" — less than 55 per cent of voting-age citizens actually voting in 1972, compared to 94 per cent in Australia, 85 per cent in West Germany, 80 per cent in Britain, 74 per cent in Japan.

"Our country," he says, "is the only country in the world that puts the burden of registration on the citizen rather than the government."

Yet a recent analysis for the American Enterprise Institute by conservative columnist Kevin Phillips and political scientist Paul Blackman reports that even though registration is almost automatic in England and Canada, turnout in low-income urban areas there is quite low.

This suggests, the authors argue, that "low-income voter inertia (rather than the supposed obstacle of registration) is substantially responsible for low U.S. voting turnout."

In 1974, three states — Minnesota, Maryland and New Jersey — used mail registration for the first time to enroll a majority of new voters.

The bill's backers focus on the large number of new registrants in those states — happily ignoring such questions as whether many of these people might not have registered anyhow by the normal method if postcards had not been permitted and whether higher registration in many areas in these states might not have been due more to population increases than the new system of registration.

Conservative analysts counter with their own figures. For example, elections specialist Richard Smolka, in another AEI study, emphasizes that total registered voters in Maryland and New Jersey last fall were slightly below the totals for the preceding election in each state.

How much more, in view of national trends, might registration have fallen in Maryland and New Jersey had it not been for postcard registration? Obviously, Smolka cannot say. All he can say is that "mail registration is unlikely to produce dramatic increases in voter registration totals."

The pending postcard bills do not touch one apparent reason for non-voting. A General Accounting Office study conducted for Sen. Edward Kennedy found that many citizens do not register because they do not want their names on lists that might be used for jury duty or made available to bill collectors and commercial solicitors, as happens in most places.

Three-fourths of the country's 6,737 state and local election boards responded to the GAO survey. Over one-third of the boards with more than 15,000 residents each, and 51 of the largest city boards, "felt that the non-election use of registration lists discouraged voter registration," Kennedy states, and many boards claimed very specific evidence to support this feeling.

Some boards, Kennedy adds, estimated that as much as 5 per cent to 10 per cent of their potential voters were turned off on these grounds.

One problem with the entire postcard controversy is the skimpiness of actual U.S. experience, but this condition is about to change.

The states that began using mail registration in 1974 will be using it again next year; several more states, including New York, have just authorized it; and several more, including California, are on the brink of approval.

This enlarged experience could provide the White House and Congress with the basis for a far better-informed decision in 1977 or later.

But then there's slight sign that anyone in this debate is going to let a little thing like information or reason interfere with ideology or self-interest.

Budget charade plain politics

Despite appearances, the Pennsylvania House apparently recognizes the need for retrenchment this year in their deliberations over the state's $4.7 billion budget.

Amendment after amendment has been offered to either cut the budget further (in the minority) or raise it in one category or another (in the majority). With but two exceptions, those amendments all have been beaten back.

There are many more amendments to go before the House votes on the budget, but the betting in the Capitol is that the budget that emerges from the lower chamber won't be significantly changed from the one that entered with the sanction of the Senate and Gov. Milton Shapp.

In fact, observers are predicting a budget on time, even though the deadline is only a hair over two weeks away.

What legislators seem to be indulging themselves in is the old game of "we tried, but you know how things are..." Legislators, long ago committed to dredging up state funds for some special interest or other, put appropriations amendments in the hopper, knowing full well that they haven't a prayer.

But by so doing, the only thing they spend is time. What they conserve is political capital. They have fulfilled their pledges by submitting the amendment, but don't push too hard, for they know that success would only mean having to vote for a tax increase to pay for their measures — distinctly unpalatable task with the economy in as sad a shape as it is.

So we're watching a charade. It's frustrating and time-consuming, but relatively harmless. The important thing is that the legislature is acknowledging the hard facts of fiscal life and acting in a responsible manner.

It's just unfortunate that legislators don't have the courage to admit it publicly. It would mean less posturing, less time wasted and, probably, a state budget in the governor's hands long since.

A pint-sized lumberjack walked into a Washington state forestry camp and asked for a job in the woods. The foreman sized him up and said, "You look pretty small for this kind of work."

"Don't let that fool you," the fellow replied. "I may be small but I'm plenty tough and I work fast!"

"Where have you been working?"

"In the Mojave Forest in Southern California."

"There's no forest in Mojave," the foreman snorted. "That's all desert land down there."

"See what I mean?" the man replied.

Senate's own Watergate

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate is perpetrating a Watergate coverup. It ought not to be allowed to get away with it.

Talk about a double standard of political morality — this is it. Apparently the senators have decided that what was bad enough for Nixon is good enough for them!

Their action is shoddy, unethical, improper — and, if I read correctly the meaning of the decision of the Supreme Court dealing with "executive privilege," it is illegal and unconstitutional.

In the wake of Watergate it is hard to believe that the Senate would be so bold and brazen as to attempt such a coverup. But it did and in behalf of one of its own. Here is the way it went about it:

Former Sen. Edward J. Gurney of Florida, who sat in judgment on President Nixon as a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, is now on trial for bribery and conspiracy in his own state. Under Senate rules he was required to file a statement of his personal finances which is retained by the controller general, an employee of Congress. The prosecutor in the Gurney case subpoenaed the controller general to obtain a copy of this financial statement as necessary evidence.

Florida court

But the Senate said no. It acted to deny the Florida court this evidence. It directed the controller general to refuse the subpoena the way Nixon refused Judge John Sirica's subpoena for the White House tapes. Thus the Senate acted to shield its former colleague from having to disclose something designated too confidential to yield to the court.

Apparently, once a senator always a senator. Very clubby — and very shabby.

The Senate is embracing some of the worst offenses it charged Richard Nixon with committing.

It accused Nixon of distorting "executive privilege" to prevent the Watergate jury from getting the facts.

Now the Senate is distorting "congressional privilege" to prevent the Gurney jury from getting the facts.

The Senate accused Nixon of hiding behind

an exaggerated concept of "executive privilege."

Now the Senate is helping Gurney hide behind an exaggerated concept of "congressional privilege."

Nixon rejected the judge's subpoena before the Supreme Court had ruled against him.

Now the Senate is rejecting the judge's subpoena after the Supreme Court has unanimously found that "confidentiality cannot prevail over the fundamental demands of due process of law."

Just as there is no unlimited "executive privilege" when it comes to criminal justice, it is not straining logic to say that there is no unlimited "congressional privilege."

If the Senate doesn't revoke its rejection of the subpoena, the Florida prosecutor should go to the Supreme Court.

Since the President is not above the law, why should senators be above the law?

Checkmate

The Arabs learned chess from the Persians, and passed the game on to Europeans. The Arabs also passed along an exclamation that they used when an opponent's king was put into an inextricable position. The exclamation was "shah mat!" — the king is dead.

The phrase became "xaque mate" in Old Spanish, "excheq mat" in Old French and, finally, "checkmate" in English.

From chess the phrase entered general usage, where it means to defeat or frustrate.

John Connally makes re-entry into political picture

have had no possible political expression.

Fascinating possibilities

In any case, the re-entry of Connally into the political picture opens up a variety of fascinating possibilities.

The "new majority" idea has always required a fusion of moderate-to-conservative Republicans with disaffected Democrats. Reagan-Wallace might effect one form of that fusion. But Ford-Connally might do it, too, although in a somewhat different form.

A Ford (Michigan)-Connally (Texas) ticket would be an ideal regional combination. To some degree, it would help to solve the Republicans' Wallace problem. Running as a third-party candidate, Wallace would split the conservative vote and very likely hand the election to the liberal Democrat. Connally might help counter such conservative erosion in the direction of Wallace.

As a patriot and a nationalist, Connally represents an important strand of American feeling. He knows and indeed has said several times recently that neither major party, as presently constituted, really represents a majority of the American people, and here he himself could be a valuable corrective. On the populist and social issue themes — busing, work ethic, taxation and welfare, lifestyle — Connally would be a potent campaigner and subsequent national spokesman. He is strong on national defense.

Connally is, of course, associated with big Texas money, but this does not seem to damage very greatly his credibility as a populist spokesman. For one thing, he is not at the same time wedded to the pure free enterprise themes that unsettle the blue-collar and labor union constituency. He thinks that the government has a strong role to play in economic affairs.

Odd though the thought may seem as applied to a Texan, Connally, as a strong government man and a nationalist, is a sort of native Bismarck, and Connally's form of conservatism would provide, for disaffected Democrats, a valuable complement to the more orthodox Grand Rapids Republicanism embodied by Ford. That, indeed, was the role Connally played in 1972 as head of Democrats for Nixon, when he campaigned for the Republican ticket in a highly successful manner.

When he was in the White House, Richard Nixon several times remarked that every Cabinet ought to contain a man of Presidential stature. He meant Connally, with whom he was immensely impressed — and Nixon's estimate of Connally's ability is almost universally shared by those who have had anything to do with him.

Within reach

For the past several years, indeed, Connally in one way or another has been within reach of the Presidency. Nixon would have preferred to run with him in 1972, but Agnew at that point was the hero of the right, and replacing him was impossible politically.

After Agnew's resignation Nixon wished to name Connally Vice President, but the Democrats indicated that they would not confirm this powerful impediment to their own pursuit of the Presidency. Bob Haldeman recently revealed that, as early as Nixon's first term, consideration was given to a scheme in which Agnew would resign to be replaced by Connally.

Now Connally has survived Federal prosecution. If he served one term as Vice President in a Ford Administration, he could easily be a formidable Republican Presidential candidate in 1980.

Letters to the editor

Editor, The Record:

Re the June 5 letter concerning the residents of the Mountain View Drive area and the proposed truck terminal:

It is true that these establishments do pay high wages, but it is also possible that they do not pay the high taxes to the townships and school districts as most feel. Would it not return more taxes if this 51 acres had 51 homes paying approximately $500 annually in taxes? This is not considering large homes.

The individual who wrote that letter had better remove the horse blinders and drive up Rte. 611 again. The area destroyed by the terminal will be able to be seen for approximately a one-mile radius. In this area there are many more than 100 homes. The petition (against the terminal) has 1,500 names.

The people of Mountain View Drive and the local area are far from retirees from the big cities. In our local development there are eight couples under 40 years old who, like their ancestors, were born and raised in the Stroudsburg area. Of the other residents, none are of retirement age. Their residency in this area ranges from five to 20 years or more.

If anyone wishes to see this area or get their facts straight before condemning us for wanting to save our property and seclusion, my name is in the phone book.

Handicapped no burden

Editor, The Record:

Re Marilyn Dennis' letter in the June 10 edition about the Arlington Heights Elementary School being used by Intermediate Unit 20:

She infers that handicapped people are below average, that the "average and above-average children will contribute to our society in the future." I guess she feels that the handicapped are a burden to society. How sad!

Right now the average and above-average are running the country. They are not doing such a good job. Maybe if they would take time to really look at the mentally and physically handicapped, they could learn a lot. For instance, love, patience and above all, honesty.

Take a good look at who commits the crimes in the country. Most of them are the so-called average and above-average people. How many retarded or physically handicapped have killed, raped, pushed drugs, embezzled? Some of the criminals are emotionally retarded, but not considered retarded. Even the emotionally disturbed can be helped, if they are helped and given a chance at an early age.

Our handicapped children should receive a fair chance at a good education. They have been shoved aside and forgotten long enough. Study the situation a little further. Unless you have a handicapped child or are handicapped, you couldn't begin to comprehend all the injustices that society perpetrates against the handicapped.

Where's the money?

Editor, The Record:

I am getting so tired of reading about the depletion of Social Security funds. Take welfare out of Social Security and there will be plenty of money to cover the program's beneficiaries.

In July, we retired people are getting an increase in Social Security. So according to a recent article in The Record, the Pleasant Valley School District is increasing real estate taxes by 10 mills.

My husband and I have been paying school taxes for 50 years, although we have no children. Are taxes going to increase so that we will be taxed out of our home?

What about the Pennsylvania lottery? Wasn't it set up to help the elderly with their real estate taxes? I would like to know where all this money is going to. The winners don't get it all.

Voters deal Gandhi second blow

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, convicted of campaign law violations, was dealt another blow Friday by her party's crushing defeat in a state election she considered crucial.

Opposition parties kept up their clamor for the prime minister's resignation, but Mrs. Gandhi said merely that she did "not want to comment" on the Thursday ruling ordering her to resign and not hold office for six years.

The judge's ruling was stayed for 20 days, allowing Mrs.

Gandhi to remain in office and appeal to the Supreme Court.

The troubled 57-year-old prime minister had said Thursday, "I shall not forsake the people..." But B.R. Bowry, director of public relations for the prime minister's office, said Mrs. Gandhi "has never said publicly that she will resign or not."

Elections results from the western coastal state of Gujarat Friday showed voters earlier in the week gave the prime minister's Congress party only 74 seats on the state's 182-member legislative assembly.

The tally was far short of the majority Mrs. Gandhi deemed crucial to her national prestige in a warm-up for next year's parliamentary elections. Congress placed second to a United Front Coalition that swept 87 of the seats.

Mrs. Gandhi had campaigned furiously over the past four weeks throughout Gujarat with the realization that the outcome would be a barometer of her popularity in next year's national elections, in which she had been expected to run for a third five-year term.

Gujarat's Congress party-led state government was denounced last year for rampant corruption. It resigned after two months of student-led riots in which 86 persons were killed. The Gandhi government ruled the 27-million person state directly from New Delhi until this week's elections.

Only three years ago, the Gujarat elections gave the Congress party — the only one to rule India since independence in 1947 — 140 seats in the then 68-member assembly.

Mrs. Gandhi side-stepped the resignation issue Friday, telling a huge gathering outside her house: "I am never upset or afraid of anything. I do not want to comment on the (court) judgment... We have faced many difficulties together and we shall continue to overcome them unitedly."

Nation's ebb and flows

India — democracy in contradiction

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The world's largest democracy was born of non-violence and blood, has guarantees of fundamental freedoms but sometimes suspends them, has had trouble feeding its citizens but is a nuclear power.

The nearly 10-year rule of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi typifies the ebb and flow of the nation's fortunes.

A state judge ruled Thursday that Mrs. Gandhi had violated the nation's corrupt practices act during her election in 1971, leading an opposition political leader to proclaim that "Mrs. Gandhi has met her Watergate."

Although the judge delayed for 20 days his order that the prime minister resign and not hold office for six years, it was yet another complication for the nation of 600 million people.

Although Mohandas K. Gandhi preached non-violence during the struggle against British colonial rule, as many as half a million persons may have been killed when Hindus battled Muslims on the eve of independence in 1947.

Partition of the former British colony—home of the fabled Bengal Lancers and setting for "Gunga Din"—left India 85 per cent Hindu and Pakistan 88 per cent Moslem.

India and Pakistan had warred before, but under the leadership of Mrs. Gandhi India crushed its rival in December, 1971. Pakistan lost its eastern wing, which became independent as Bangladesh, and Mrs. Gandhi won accolades as "Mother India" and the "Goddess of Victory."

The time of war was also the time of the flowering of India's "Green Revolution," with its new seeds and types of grain bringing promises of vastly increased agricultural production to a nation long plagued by drought, food shortages and famine.

There were predictions of self-sufficiency in food and the beginning of a new good life for the masses.

But successive droughts browned out the green revolution, corrupt politicians skimmed the cream off the good life, and by this year Indira Gandhi's victory garlands were a dusty faded memory.

Mrs. Gandhi became prime minister in 1966, continuing the Congress party's rule of the nation, unbroken since independence. The party's first prime minister was Jawaharlal Nehru, its third is his daughter, Mrs. Gandhi.

Although the constitution guarantees a free press, free movement, political association, freedom of religion and an individual's right to own property, amendments have let the government jail people without trial for two years on suspicion of threatening the country's security and public order.

The national emergency proclaimed during the Indo-Pakistani War continues, giving the government power to suspend constitutionally guaranteed, fundamental rights of citizens.

The emergency also authorizes the government to suspend elections to Parliament due next year, and some opposition parties felt even before the court ruling that Mrs. Gandhi, if she felt she would lose, might simply call off the elections.

The Congress party's strength slipped sharply in the last parliamentary elections and the government has been beset by state-level political upheavals, sometimes suspending state assemblies and ruling directly from New Delhi.

New challenges to Mrs. Gandhi have come from Mohandas Gandhi-style leader Jayaprakash Narayan, who for more than a year has been spearheading a nationwide drive against government corruption and has been picking up support.

Although India has experienced food shortages for several of its post-independence years, last year it exploded its first nuclear device, becoming only the sixth nation to do so.

The government vowed it would use nuclear energy only for peaceful purposes, but several nations, especially Pakistan, expressed skepticism. Indo-U.S. relations have fluctuated over the years, also, and have been somewhat strained since the U.S. "tilt" toward Pakistan in the 1971 war.

Last February, Washington announced it was lifting the 10-year-old ban on arms sales to Pakistan, sparking an indignant outpouring of anti-American statements from Indian government officials.

Captive students ask for life-saving help

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — Two American students and a Dutch girl held hostage by left-wing African guerrillas have appealed to their governments to act quickly to save their lives, the U.S. Embassy said Friday.

The embassy said both the United States and the Netherlands were involved in "intensive activity" to obtain the safe return of the three students kidnapped nearly a month ago.

The embassy issued a statement Friday saying both governments had received a batch of letters from the students in the past few days. It was the first direct contact with the kidnap victims for several weeks.

The letters "appealed to the ambassadors to do everything within their power to act as quickly as possible to save the lives of the three captives," the statement said.

It added: "The ambassadors in turn want to acknowledge that intensive activity is continuing to obtain the safe return of the three."

The statement gave no further details.

"We are in a very delicate stage right now and it's best to not say anything," U.S. Ambassador Beverly Carter said.

A band of about 40 heavily armed guerrillas captured the hostages about a month ago in a raid on a research station in western Tanzania.

The guerrillas belong to the Marxist Peoples Revolutionary party, a left-wing group sworn to overthrow the government of Zaire. President Mobutu Sese Seko.

CITIZENSHIP AT LAST? — Robert E. Lee, shown in one of three rare 1865 photographs by Matthew Brady taken just after surrender at Appomattox, may be restored to citizenship under legislation advanced by a House subcommittee. Lee has been a man without a country for 110 years awaiting action on an issue that somehow got lost in the mails and then was shunted aside and ignored until it vanished in the dusty archives of Washington. Searching for Asian policy

U.S. groping in dark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the light snuffed out at the end of the Indochina tunnel, American officials are groping in the dark for a new U.S. policy towards Asia.

Even as the communists were sweeping to victory first in Cambodia and then in South Vietnam, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced the U.S. would undertake a serious review of its Asian policy, a policy which had been shaped for nearly seven years by none other than Henry Kissinger.

Although the events were far more dramatic, the announcement was similar to Kissinger's declaration earlier this year that a serious reassessment would be made of American policy in the Middle East, where Kissinger's latest peace efforts also failed.

As Saigon fell, Kissinger told newsmen that the objective of the review of Asian policy would be to "crystallize an Asian policy that is suited to present circumstances."

In the future, Kissinger said, the United States would concentrate on Japan, South Korea, the Philippines, Indonesia, Singapore, Australia and New Zealand.

In so doing he underscored the domino theory by omitting the names of Thailand and Laos, which are neighbors of the now Communist-dominated Cambodia and South Vietnam.

He, in fact, pointedly refused to abandon the domino theory in his news conference, warning that "the outcome in Indochina will have consequences."

It is clear that of those nations mentioned, Japan will become the key American ally in Asia, a relationship it has had in name only in the past. It is also clear that Asian nations will have a stronger voice in setting the policy. The United States will talk less and listen more.

Relations with China, which President Ford still plans to visit later this year, may improve, but Japan is the major Asian nation that remains truly stable politically, is economically strong considering world conditions and remains allied with the United States.

Ford and Kissinger are understood to have deeply appreciated Japanese Foreign Minister Kiichi Miyazawa's remarks during a recent visit here that the loss of Indochina was not tantamount to an American military defeat.

"One has to view it in the context of what those nations did to help themselves," Miyazawa told reporters after visiting Kissinger and Ford.

Although Miyazawa made his comments when neither Cambodia nor South Vietnam had fallen, their collapse was obviously imminent, their leaders were accusing the United States of betrayal, and Philippines President Ferdinand A. Marcos was threatening to cancel U.S. military base agreements.

Miyazawa advised the United States not to change its policy towards Asia either drastically or quickly, despite the obvious Indochinese setbacks. Rather, Miyazawa said, the United States should study the Asian character more astutely.

With a reassessment of the U.S. policy in the Middle East already underway and a review of Asian policy planned, it is difficult to see how a full fledged review of Kissinger's global detente policy can be avoided.

Kissinger himself has declared that, in the light of the loss of Indochina to Communism, the U.S. should adopt a foreign policy that can be supported by the American public staunchly for decades.

Recovery, recycling pose risks of disappointment

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Resource recovery" and "recycling", despite their current prominence and potential, still pose many problems.

Effort by industry and public officials to spur recycling of valuable materials and recovery of materials from garbage and solid waste, using the waste as fuel to generate power, is resulting in considerable disappointment and disillusionment, two experts said in separate meetings recently. Both speakers were enthusiasts for the causes they were reporting on in somewhat somber tones.

"There has been too much rhetoric that pictures resource recovery as a panacea for the country's solid waste management problems. It may lead to overspending and much disappointment," Harold Gershowitz, senior vice president of Waste Management, Inc., said at the Columbia University Graduate Business School.

M. J. Mighdoll, executive vice president of the National Association of Recycling Industries, told his group's annual convention that, in spite of expenditures of millions of dollars and huge efforts by industry and public officials, recyclers of lead, aluminum, copper, nickel, zinc, stainless steel and even paper have not succeeded in the past two years in enlarging their shares of the market as against virgin materials.

An end to the recession would help restore demand and boost scrap prices. However, Mighdoll told a Federal Highway Administration seminar later, many recycling programs now underway will fail unless the federal government offers incentives to expand markets and create new ones. He said, for instance, virgin industries now receive tax credits which provide up to 50 per cent of their profits, but no such credits are given to recycling industries.

He said the long range problem is the overselling of resource recovery by enthusiasts and municipal officials who jump to the conclusion that all they need do to solve the waste disposal problem is build a big plant to recover materials from waste and sell the residue to a power company as fuel. That won't happen, he said.

The most common mistake by waste recovery enthusiasts, Gershowitz said, is that "in their zeal to make the waste disposal problem 'go away', some communities neglect the severe problems of finding long-term markets for recovered materials and fuel made from wastes and build extremely expensive plants that will fall far short of expectations."

Waste management must be flexible as well as sophisticated, Gershowitz said, and it must be imaginative and innovative. Also it must be concerned with profit.

He cited two innovative waste management projects executed by private companies that combined profit and public service successfully. His own company is developing a 180-acre park from waste materials in DuPage County, Ill., that ultimately will get revenue from ski hills, toboggan slides, riding and hiking trails.

Another firm that has a contract to collect solid waste in San Francisco is getting ready to build a similar park out of processed waste fill at Mountain View, Calif.

ARE YOU READY FOR
PENNSYLVANIA'S NO-FAULT
AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE?

Question —

DOES NO-FAULT COVER DAMAGE TO MY CAR?

No. No-Fault insurance, by itself, only covers personal injuries. Unless you also buy collision and comprehensive coverage your car repair bills will not be paid by insurance unless someone else was at fault and you can collect from them.

HOW MUCH MONEY WILL I SAVE WITH NO-FAULT?

The amount of your savings will depend on where you live, what use you make of your car, the age of the drivers in your household and their driving record. For the average family, the savings will be approximately $10.00 a car for a year. You should bear in mind however, that auto insurance rates in Pennsylvania have just been revised for the first time in four years. These rate revisions have nothing whatever to do with No-Fault, but reflect the increase in cost of medical care and auto repair costs that have occurred in the last four years. This means that many motorists will receive renewal policies after No-Fault goes into effect with higher premiums than they are now paying.

Parochial aid ruling job-costly

EDITORS NOTE: The following is a review and analysis of issues facing the Pennsylvania legislature.

By THOMAS FERRICK JR.
HARRISBURG (UPI) — David Herdman had what he called a "unique experience" last week. He fired himself.

Herdman is coordinator for nonpublic school services in Delaware County. He used to oversee a $2.4 million annual budget, a staff of seven and 185 teachers.

Herdman sent pink slips to the teachers last week saying their services would no longer be needed as of June 30.

"There is no program. We don't need a staff to operate it, so I terminated my own employment," Herdman said.

Education Department officials estimate Herdman is one of 2,000 administrators and teachers statewide who will lose their jobs because of the May 19 U.S. Supreme Court ruling knocking down two of Pennsylvania's parochial aid programs.

The programs allowed $61 in state aid for each of the 440,000 students attending nonpublic schools in Pennsylvania. The $28 million a year was used to buy instructional materials — maps, slides and reference books — plus let the schools hire speech and hearing therapists, psychologists, guidance counselors, librarians, and remedial reading and special education teachers.

The ruling had important legal implications and will be the subject of debate among the experts who oppose or favor parochial aid.

But it also had an immediate political impact. Democrats in the Pennsylvania House thought they had an agreement last week on a new 12-month state budget that promised no new taxes.

But Rep. Martin Mullen, D-Philadelphia, set up a roadblock to the Democrat leaders' plans to run the budget last week.

Mullen objected to the proposed transfer for general use the $28 million set aside for the two programs, plus $169 million held in escrow for another defunct parochial aid program. He was supported by at least 40 members of the 114-member Democratic caucus.

Sources within the caucus said members will eventually approve the transfer of the money, because if they refuse there will have to be a tax increase.

But Mullen made his point. The Democrats already are working on a new program to aid parochial schools and some predict it may be introduced as early as next week.

"They realize they have to come up with something," said one Democrat. "We can't ask members to vote to transfer the money without having an alternative program ready to roll."

However, most legislators and attorneys admit the courts are likely to knock down any new program.

Pennsylvania, which has the largest per capita number of parochial school students in the nation, has been in the forefront of the battle to get aid to the nonpublic schools.

After the May 19 decision, Gov. Milton J. Shapp promised to seek new ways to help the schools, but admitted the job was becoming tougher with each high court ruling.

"Three separate programs have been tried. All have been found unconstitutional," Shapp said. "Unfortunately, this most recent Supreme Court decision offers no grounds for optimism for future aid programs."

But pressure is expected to build on Shapp and the General Assembly to pass a new program once the full impact of the high court opinion is felt.

A hearing is scheduled for June 25 in federal court in Philadelphia on implementation of the decision.

Education Secretary John Pittenger was scheduled to release guidelines Monday on what to do with the three years worth of educational material the schools have accumulated.

When a similar program was struck down in New Jersey two years ago, the material "loaned" to the schools was carted off by public school officials. Some held "auctions" where parochial school officials could buy back the maps, projectors and books for a nominal fee.

At others, the parochial school officials found themselves outbid by public school administrators, who said they needed the material. It resulted in a great deal of hostility among Roman Catholic parents, some of whom set up picket lines at some public schools to protest the action.

Nonpublic school officials say they will be hurt most by the loss of the special teachers, who let them help children who only a few years ago would be put in the back of the class and considered "slow students."

Most schools have tight budgets and cannot afford to keep the teachers on the payroll.

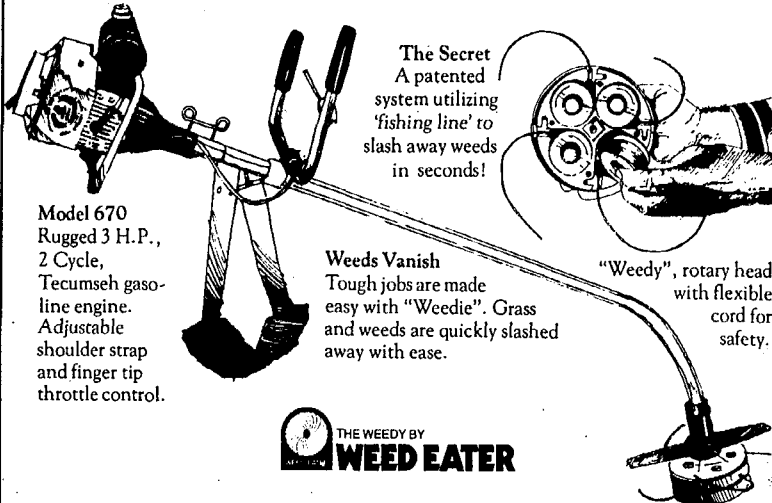

Frank Reno, principal of Greensburg Central Catholic High School in Westmoreland County, said last week he probably will have to fire a remedial reading teacher and a parttime speech therapist.

"It makes me sick down deep. She is an excellent teacher and we were giving all the freshman who came into the school remedial reading," Reno said. "We had kids come in with fourth grade reading levels and after one semester with her they read at the ninth grade level."

Lady MacBeth is now in the construction business

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

CANADENSIS — Whether she's playing Lady MacBeth, supervising the installation of a sewerage bed for her construction company, or teaching a class in interior design at the Monroe County Vocational-Technical School, perky Astrid Keuler exuberates an aura of electricity to all who come in contact with her.

A vivacious housewife and mother, and a truly modern-day Renaissance woman, Mrs. Keuler is a teacher, a former private detective and experienced lithographer and is the co-founder of the Phoenix Players, a local theatrical group which pumped nearly $11,000 in profits into Monroe County.

A member of the board of directors of the National Association of Home Builders and a member of the board of directors of the Pocono Mountain Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. Keuler feels at home as a professional actress as she does showing a potential customer a lot in The Hamlet, the Canadensis development she and her husband own and operate.

Having been named for a Swedish princess and raised in a fundamental Christian home, the Cresco businesswoman is a perfectionist who insists on doing everything well, while at the same time retaining all of her femininity.

Sipping some warm tea from a white china cup, Mrs. Keuler brushed back a wisp of her light blonde hair over one of her deep-set blue eyes and reflected on the women's liberation movement.

"I've never needed to be liberated, but I'm all for every woman being able to use her abilities to the best of her capacities," she said. "I personally don't need the framework of an organization to do that, but there are those women who do. I don't want to be a militant girl."

Very articulate with a distinct touch of class and flare that reflect the southern finishing school she attended as a girl, Mrs. Keuler, who has been married for 27 years, said she looks for inner strength in men.

"I would never enjoy a marriage where I dominated, although I try to do it constantly," she said frankly. "I know I'd never be happy if I ever got away with it, though."

A romantic who enjoys reading poetry and at the same time, a woman who enjoys people and isn't afraid to make waves, Mrs. Keuler first moved to Stroud Township from New York in 1965, although she had summered in the area with her family since she was a young girl.

In 1966, a year after she moved to Monroe County, the uniquely active woman completed several teaching courses at East Stroudsburg State College.

Following the accomplishment of that goal, she taught at Kirkridge. Still enjoying the teacher-student relationship as an opportunity where both sides can grow and learn together, the Canadensis businesswoman and mother teaches an interior design course one night a week at the vo-tech school.

Preferring a simple taste in clothes, especially since her professional theatrical career has enabled her to wear the most elegant costumes, Mrs. Keuler remembered fondly back to her early married years when she took a job as an undercover detective at the age of 19.

Working in that capacity for three years, the trim mother of two exposed many thefts, whereby employees pocketed cash for merchandise without ever ringing the sale up on the cash register.

Selling her first two-acre lot in a subdivision called Spruce Hill Farms by sitting on the curb of the proposed development in 1970, Mrs. Keuler has become adept as a developer and enjoys dealing in real estate.

"I like dealing with people at The Hamlet she said, but the most important thing is to be in a super-honest, straight situation at all times. And you must be able to relate people to people to make any concept like this work."

Wishing now that she and her husband would have had more children, Mrs. Keuler said she doesn't regret that she didn't devote full time to being a mother.

"We made time for the children, but they did suffer as a result of me working," she said. "I do think that children are secure, however, in seeing the achievement of their parents in terms of developing values and using their abilities."

Having worked in the neighbor's candy store when she was 12, the local housewife learned at an early age to please customers. She said she also learned early to put an emphasis on cleanliness, because of the job.

One of the first women to be admitted to the New York trade school for color printing estimating and a production clerk at 23, Mrs. Keuler said she enjoyed all the challenges that the lithography business had to offer.

It was to fully utilize all her energies that she, her husband, and a third partner began the J. Clark Construction Company to build the kind of quality homes at The Hamlet that Mrs. Keuler thought reflected the right mixture of taste and good design.

Preferring to think of herself as active, creative and just plain nice, Mrs. Keuler described her husband Jack as "The Rock of Gibraltar!"

"My husband really likes the way I am," she said. "He likes the things I do and he's proud of the things I have accomplished in my life."

Bicentennial badges

Girl Scout camp to begin

SCRANTON — Registered and former Girl Scouts in Monroe County still have an opportunity to apply to participate in the Scranton Pocono Girl Scout Council's resident camping program this summer.

Mrs. Patricia W. Freiler, Camp Archibald director, has announced that there are many openings available during the camp's eight-week season which begins on Sunday, June 22.

Brownie Girl Scouts entering grades two through four are encouraged to sign up for any one or two-week general camping sessions which include a variety of activities such as learning simple outdoor skills, hiking, swimming, boating and canoeing, crafts, singing and nature activities.

A two-week remedial enrichment program for girls entering grades three through six is available during the July 20 — Aug. 1 and Aug. 3-15 sessions.

The program is the first of its kind in a resident camp and combines the fun of general camping activities with an emphasis on improving math and reading skills. The remedial enrichment program is under the supervision of qualified teachers.

Junior Girl Scouts entering grades four through six may still apply to participate in the general camping program during the one and two-week sessions. In addition to the regular activities, juniors have a chance to work on badge requirements during their stay at camp.

A special junior camperafter program is open to girls entering grades five and six from July 20 — Aug. 1 who are interested in learning more about outdoor cooking, campercraft skills and primitive camping.

Two bicentennial arts units have openings for girls entering grades six through nine. The bicentennial arts units are two weeks in length and include activities related to learning many of the lost arts such as soap making, quilting, baking bread and folk dancing.

Camper participants in this program will have an opportunity to work on requirements for two bicentennial badges.

Cadet Girl Scouts entering grades eight through 10 can apply to participate in one and two-week general camping sessions, as well as a number of special two-week encampments including a horseback riding unit, language unit featuring French, Spanish and German, and a waterfront unit.

There are also a limited number of openings available for the bicycle trips during July 6-18 and July 20-Aug. 1.

Senior Girl Scouts entering grades 11 and 12 may apply for the three-week counselor-in-training program designed to help participants gain the skills necessary to become camp counselors and troop leaders.

Ann Landers

Harmful words

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column in which you identified the most important words in the English language. You said the six most important words were, "I admit I made a mistake." The five are, "You did a good job." Four — "What is your opinion?" Three — "If you please." Two — "Thank you." One — "We." The least important word, you said, was "I."

I just read some remarks made by Dr. Chester Ewing, a physician in Chester County Pa. He identified the four most terrible words in the English language. Please print this letter. Many a teenager's life might be changed by it.

The most terrible words are "chicken," "square," "yellow" and "brown-nosing."

Dr. Ewing said he knew of three instances where kids had been hounded by the word "yellow" until they tried dope. He then cited some conversations he had had with young people — in hospitals. They admitted the reason they were drag-racing (which leads to accidents) was because they were called "chicken."

Being called "square" has made young people ashamed of dressing decently, being courteous to adults, and showing respect for authority. All young people want to be considered "with it." A "square" is "out of it." That name encourages kids to prove they are "gutsy" and "up front."

"Brown-nosing" is a slang term for trying to curry favor. It is especially applied to teacher-student relationships. Students who raise their hands in class to ask questions are called "brown-nosers" because they give the teacher the impression they are interested. This stands the students in good stead with the teacher — but not with their peers.

I hope the teens who read your column will pay attention to this letter. It could change their entire outlook and lengthen their lives. —

Pa. Reader

Dear Reader: Amen.

Dear Ann Landers: I am baffled by your adjectives. In a recent column you used the term "raw" sex. Will you please tell a simple-minded, uninformed hillbilly transplant from West Virginia to Salt Lake City, just how is "raw" sex different from "cooked" sex? Also, when is sex "well-done"? —

Just Askin'

Dear Just: Tastes vary — as any gourmet will tell you. I checked the dictionary and "raw" is defined as "crude or uncultivated." As for what kind of sex is "well-done" — that, too, depends on the individual.

Dear Ann Landers: The high-school students in our town frequently have parties at the homes of boys whose parents happen to be away. We've told our 15-year-old daughter that she may not attend any party unless one parent is present. She believes we are being overprotective and unfair.

Our daughter is a lovely, intelligent girl and we trust her. But I still believe the rule is a good one. My husband suddenly has sided with her and I'm having a hard time. We all want your opinion. —

Syracuse Hassle

Dear Hass: I hope you'll hang in there. Your position is sound. When teenagers give parties at least one parent should be on the premises and the guests should be aware of it.

Dear Ann Landers: I teach junior high school, and am deeply concerned about a summer-school student who was transferred to my class last week. He is only 13 and I smell liquor on his breath every morning when he comes to school. Is it possible that a 13-year-old can be an alcoholic?

Ohio Teacher

Dear O.: It certainly is. And I urge you to get that youngster into counseling at once. He is in desperate need of help.

What's the story on pot, L.S.D., cocaine, uppers and downers, speed? Can you handle it if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Too young for dates

By Jean Adams

NOT ALONE: (Q.) My parents think I am too young to date. I mean with another couple or group. I would really like to go out with another couple or a group of people, but definitely not alone. What do you think about this? —

13 in Alabama

(A.) Thirteen is too young for either a boy or a girl to date or double date or triple date. I am talking here of 13-year-olds going out together, without adult supervision.

But it is not too young for chaperoned boy-girl social events, either in the home or at a movie or restaurant or bowling lane or park or pool or elsewhere.

TRAGEDY: (Comment) I was a wild kid. I started smoking in fifth grade, drinking in junior high, and at 15 I was getting drunk at least once a week. I was also into drugs for a while, and ran around with girls who had reputations. In school I was frequently suspended.

My dad did all he could to straighten me up. He took me to church, took away my motorcycle. One night I came home drunk and beat up on him. The cops locked me up for two days. One night not long after that we got into a real big fight. All of a sudden he had a heart attack and died.

You don't know what I've gone through since then. I know I caused it. I can't get rid of my guilt. I've straightened up now, but I can't undo what I did. Please tell your readers to listen to their parents and respect them. Most of them really do care. Don't wait until they are no longer here to realize it. —

Guilty in Georgia

(A.) Learning and growing is often costly and painful. Yours has been. But you have learned and you have grown. Now, you must be positive and build on what you have learned from your sad experience.

Do not defeat yourself and your father by wasting your life in guilt and self-accusation. Be what your father wanted you to be — a decent human being with respect for yourself and other human beings.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♥	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	6 ♠

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

Assume you're in six clubs and West leads a heart, which you win with the king. It is clear that the slam is in danger because East overcalled North's spade bid with two hearts and probably has six of them.

This, in turn, means that West led a singleton and might be able to ruff a heart if you incautiously played a trump at trick two to force out the ace. So you start worrying about how to overcome this danger, and, after you worry a while — as all careful declarers do — you come up with the right decision.

You cash the ace of spades, play a diamond to the king, and start running dummy's spades, planning to discard the 7-4 of hearts on the K-Q of spades before leading trumps.

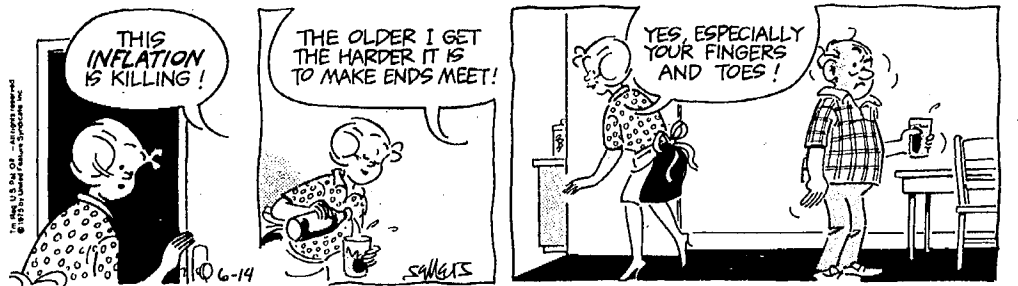

As it happens, your plan doesn't work out the way you expected it to, but it is successful nevertheless. When you play the third round of spades, East is faced with a choice of ruffing the queen of spades with his singleton ace of trumps or discarding on the trick instead. His play makes no difference because you discard your last heart in either case, and the only trick you lose is to the ace of trumps.

Note that your plan would likewise have succeeded if East had held the A-x of trumps. If he ruffed the third round of spades low, you would overruff, play a trump, and in that way make the slam.

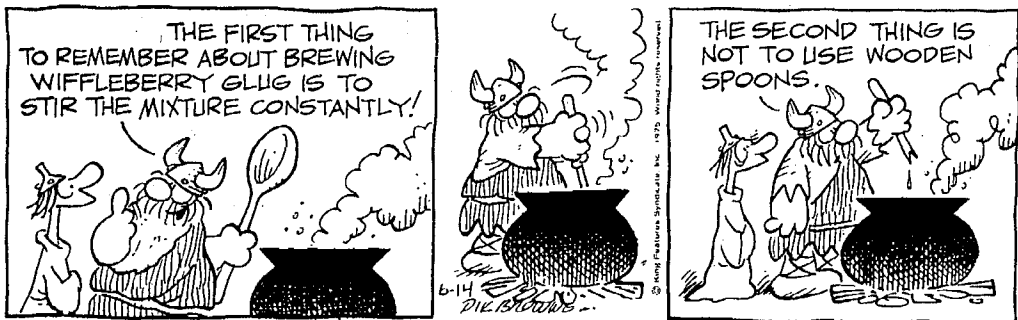

Note also what would happen if, at trick two, you had led a trump right away. East would take the ace, return a heart, and down the chute would go the slam because you had tackled trumps prematurely.

Army turns 200; Depot eats cake

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

TOBYHANNA — The tablecloth was white and the napkins were red and blue.

And it wasn't just luck that the tiny American flags on the Army anniversary dinner programs happened to match.

It was a combination 200th birthday of the United States Army and "News Media Day" as the Tobyhanna Army Depot hosted a bicentennial celebration Friday and opened its gates to the public.

Twenty-five members of the news media within a 60 mile radius of the depot accepted invitations to the Army's birthday and "News Media Day."

Tours of the depot, a dinner, a slide show and talk by Soviet affairs specialist Lt. Col. Daniel K. Malone and presentation of awards to newsmen highlighted the event.

The depot, which employs over 3,000 persons (98 per cent of whom are civilians), was decked out for the occasion with military music, streamers and flags outdoors near the main administration building.

Inside the main lobby, there were displays of military uniforms, and weapons that have been used throughout the 200 years of the Army's existence.

Photo data plates of the Founding Fathers and historical documents such as the "Declaration of Independence" and the "Constitution" were hung in display cases throughout the lobby.

Colonel William E. Dasch, commander of the Tobyhanna Army Depot, welcomed guests to the affair and aided in presenting "public service awards" to nine newspapers, six radio and five television stations in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

In the main address of the program, Col. Malone, commander of the Scranton Army Ammunition Plant, spoke on the Soviet Union. Malone spent two years in the USSR as a Soviet affairs expert for the Army.

He maintained there are several goals of the Soviet Union that must keep the United States Army vigilant for the future.

Malone said the Soviets view detente as a "social force in their favor" and desire "to create a balance of military power more favorable to the USSR."

Showing several slides, Malone briefly sketched Russian and Soviet history up to the "Cold War" period of the 1950's and 1960's.

In addition to speeches, tours were also conducted through the depot which houses supply and maintenance missions.

Tour guides said over half the work force at the depot is engaged in repair or overhaul for automotive and electronics communication equipment for combat vehicles, missile systems and ships.

The depot also stores Army supplies and is one of 78 such military installations throughout the country.

A depository that stocks hundreds of thousands of reels of Army films is also located at the depot.

Class of '75 bids S-burg farewell

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Class President Samuel Romano termed the Class of 1975 a class that "lost many championships (sports and others), but kept fighting and gained a great deal more."

But Stroudsburg's graduating class will also probably be remembered for the number of main speakers at the commencement — a total of six — who touched on a variety of subjects from seeking good counsel, condemning apathy and supporting your local school directors.

Jonathan Newman, one of three valedictorians, spoke on the topic of the "Importance of Helping Others" at commencement ceremonies held in the high school stadium Friday night.

Newman stressed the importance of "devoting our lives to the benefit of others" and specifically mentioned the Stroudsburg School Board and its financial problems.

Newman noted that the board consisted of a group of men "who serve without remuneration and give free time to help the educational system."

He suggested that the board receive the community's support during a time when the district is faced with increased taxation.

"Expenditures for education are of paramount importance for any educational system," he noted.

He maintained students needed the best education in order to be able to help others.

Valedictorian Barbara Flick called for an end to apathy in today's society and termed it "the greatest threat to the country."

She said people must "not hide from responsibility," but band together "for it is the only way we shall be heard."

Maria Zateeny, a third valedictorian, told a crowd of parents and well-wishers that the family unit should be more active in instilling values of self-confidence, compassion, resilience and hope in children.

Salutatorian William Austell asked that people do more listening to others. He said it would enhance one's ability to "think and decide for oneself."

The class oration was given by Romano, who listed class successes and failures. He pointed to the maturity and growth of the class over the year.

Alan J. Strassman of the Class of 1956, who went on to become a successful Boston businessman, was the guest speaker.

Strassman urged the class to seek good counsel, which he termed an exchange of ideas, rather than just listen to advice.

He suggested high schools abolish commencement addresses and hold a week of commencement discussions instead.

After the main addresses, Superintendent Samuel O. Wells presented awards to the following students: Cheryl Ann Burris, outstanding female athlete in the senior class; Frank Bell, outstanding male athlete in the senior class; James Decker, Robert Brown Award; Stephen Chura, Kiwanis Citation and Samuel Romano, Egbert Medal.

The three class valedictorians received scholarships from the Class of 1907.

Students who received awards during Moving-up Day ceremonies at the high school were: Andrea Levergood, art award; John Frailey, Bausch and Lomb Science Award; Barbara Flick, commercial award; Stephen Chura, DAR American History Award; Pamela Keller, DAR Citizenship Award; Maria Zateeny, English award and Lise Weingartner, foreign language award.

Also, Robert Schaefer, male health and physical education award; Susan Schneec, female health and physical education award; Karen Achterman, home economics award; John Keiper, industrial arts award; Samuel Romano, James Walsh Award for Leadership; Jonathan Newman, journalism award and mathematics awards and Kimberleigh Wilush, Monroe County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Assn. for Retarded Citizens Award.

Also, John Frailey, music award; Joan Frailey, music award; Thomas Becker, Music Study Club Award; Samuel Romano, science award; Lise Weingartner, social studies award; Pete Rinehart, Fred Waring Choral Award; William Austell, Arion Award and Jonathan Newman and Maria Zateeny, Thomas L. Construction proposals solicited

ESSC students ask dorm bids

STROUDSBURG — Construction proposals are being solicited by the Student Activity Association of East Stroudsburg State College to build an apartment house near campus to accommodate students.

The students proposed building their own dorm to help alleviate overcrowding in existing campus facilities.

Louis Sancinito, president of SAA said he hopes that all proposals or notices of intent to submit proposals are received by mid-July. He said one or two persons have already expressed interest in submitting a proposal.

Sancinito said he will head a committee of six students and a member of the school's Board of Trustees to review the proposals. Two of the college's deans will serve as ex officio members of the committee.

Sancinito and Jackie McCarthy, former chairman of the SAA budget committee, said they anticipate the cost of the building will be under $700,000 with the rent per student not to exceed $70 a month.

The apartment building is to consist of 40 two-bedroom apartments. Four students are to be assigned to each apartment on a first come, first served basis.

Each apartment is to contain approximately 620 square feet, including 190 for a living room, kitchen area and 160 square feet for each bedroom. The remainder is allotted to toilet, tub and shower facilities.

Sancinito said the submitted proposals should entail the proposed location, apartment concept, an indication that zoning requirements can be met, method of financing, and repayment schedule. The building should be of rugged construction and fireproof and contain vandal-proof fixtures.

Sancinito said the committee will also want cost estimates for the land, building, special utility needs and furniture included in the proposal.

All proposals are to be submitted to Apartment-style Residences, Box 169, Student Union Building, East Stroudsburg State College. Questions may be directed to Miss McCarthy or John Quain at 421-4267.

Sancinito said the tentative opening date for the apartment has been set for September 1976.

"The housing situation is critical on campus," he said. "Many students are living three to a room."

Sancinito said the idea of a student-run living complex was overwhelmingly approved by a referendum April 24.

Rent proceeds will be relied on to pay off the mortgage, interest, and operating costs, he said. The student activity fund will guarantee the payments, Sancinito added.

He said the college administration has been "very helpful" in investigating the possibilities of apartment housing but added the new building will be run by the students and not subject to the rules of the college, although regulations will be set down by the students.

Wind Gap hospital tabled

ALLENTOWN — An application to construct a $4 million medical center in Wind Gap has been tabled by the review committee of the Eastern Pennsylvania Comprehensive Health Planning Board (EPCHPB) pending submission of alternate proposals.

The review board said an emergency room with out-patient services or a satellite hospital should be investigated.

"There definitely is a need for some services in the Slate Belt area," James Brush, review board spokesman said Friday. "But the question is if there's a need to build a hospital to provide those services."

The CHPB review board is to consider the application again at an Aug. 14 meeting.

The proposed 65-bed hospital has been in the planning stage for over a year, according to Wind Gap Mayor Joseph Dell'alba who says emergency care and a diagnostic center are both desperately needed in the area.

According to Brush the review board wants a cost comparison on setting up an emergency room either in an existing building or a new building. The satellite hospital would offer minimum services but be able to use facilities at a larger area hospital when needed.

Brush said the review committee will make a written request to Wind Gap officials asking for the cost comparisons on the alternatives. The committee will study the figures prior to the August session.

Once the full CHPB approves of the project, the state Department of Health must give its approval before passing the application to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mayor Dell'alba said Wind Gap residents are presently faced with a duplication of costs. Patients who go to local physicians are often referred to a hospital where diagnostic tests are repeated.

No specific site for the hospital has been selected but a half-dozen sites are under consideration between Bangor and Pen Argyl, Dell'alba said.

Local girl blossoms as top Laurel beauty

WHITE HAVEN — Bette Jo Kristof of East Stroudsburg, R.D. 5 was named 1975 Laurel Blossom Festival Queen during a dinner program in the Sheraton-Picasso near White Haven Thursday.

"I'm very happy to be able to represent the Poconos in some way," Miss Kristof said. "It's a great privilege."

The 20-year-old social hostess at Mount Airy Lodge, Mount Pocono was crowned before 200 people by her predecessor, Pamela Mock, Miss Laurel Blossom of 1974.

She was selected from among five finalists chosen Tuesday after being judged in evening gowns, bathing suits and responding to a question from the judges.

Selection of the queen from the five finalists was based on beauty, poise and personality.

Miss Kristof has blonde hair, blue eyes, is five foot seven and weighs 119 pounds. She hopes to become a professional model. Her other interests include tennis, skiing, karate and playing the organ.

"My father picked up the application for me," Miss Kristof said. "I didn't really expect to win. There was tough competition. I'm very happy."

First runner-up in the contest was Debra Jane Nonne-maker, 18, of Old Zionville, a senior at Emmaus High School.

The second runner-up was Sharon Stanek of Ashley, a student at Bloomsburg State College.

The queen received $100 and an all-expense paid weekend trip to Atlantic City. The first and second runners-up received $50 and $25, respectively.

For the next two weeks Miss Kristof will appear at numerous activities in Jim Thorpe, including an auto show, an art show and a soccer game.

Last year she was second runner-up in the Schaefer 500 contest.

Robert Uguccioni, executive director of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, was cited as the Man of the Year. He was cited for his efforts in the development and promotion of the Pocono Mountains.

Judges were Michael Miller, owner of the Carrousel Salon, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Mary Bishop, first assistant director of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.; Mrs. Frances Philips, owner of radio station WYNS, Lehigh; and Joseph Baldassari, manager of J. Write to know Aside to J.V., New Providence, N.J.: Here's another source to obtain handles to lift the lids off a woodburning stove: Mrs. Ruth Singer, 31 N. 5th St., Stroudsburg.

Q. I wrote to Write To Know last October to find out if anyone knows where to buy handles for Wonder Ware stainless steel cookware. I purchased the pans 14 years ago and they are still like new, but the handles broke. I would also like to buy a few more pieces to the set.

C.D., Stroudsburg

A. Last fall we were unsuccessful in attempts to discover a solution to your problem. We're reprinting your request in the hopes a reader may be able to help.

Q. On March 31 I sent a $6.95 for a four-record set entitled "Faith and Inspiration" from RCA Record Service. I received my canceled check, but no record. I wrote to the company, but they never answered. Can you help me?

P.C., Stroudsburg

A. We contacted RCA's office in Indianapolis, which said it would investigate the matter. Expect a letter in the mail shortly.

Q. How can I contact the Vegetarian Society?

S.V., Saylorsburg

A. There's nothing listed by that name in the World Almanac. Perhaps a reader can help out with your request.

Q. Last summer The Pocono Record featured a story on a man who made flower containers out of old tires. I have since misplaced his name. I would like to either learn how to make these containers or have him build a couple for me. What is his name?

E.H., Mount Pocono

A. Victor Hoffman of Brodheadsville is the man you're looking for. You can contact him at 992-4978.

Q. Three months ago my daughter sent her camera for repairs to Keystone Camera in Paramus, N.J. She paid $17.00 for repairs and has never heard from the company since. She wrote to inquire about the delay, but has not received a reply. Can you help get her camera back?

R.P., Stroudsburg

A. The company needs some specific information which you didn't give us. Obtain the service order number, the exact date you sent in the camera, a copy of the canceled check and send them to Keystone, 167 Clifton Blvd., Clifton, N.J. 07011, Attention: Shirley. They should be able to take care of things once you provide these bits of information.

Q. A few years ago I bought a Utility Tester from Superior Instruments Co. Now that the battery pack is dead, I tried to replace it according to the instructions, but to no avail. I wrote to the company at 2435-41 White Plains Rd., New York, N.Y. but the letter came back because the company had moved and left no address. Can you find them?

S.P., Pocono Summit

A. We were unable to trace this company. There is no telephone number for it in New York City. Maybe a reader with a more recent address can help out.

Q. I have worn Iron Age safety shoes since 1946. I purchased them through my former employer. Now I work at a different company and recently tried to order two pairs of shoes. My order was returned with a note which said I had to order at least six pairs. This is impossible since there are only three employees at my company. Is there some way I can order just two pairs?

S.H., East Stroudsburg

A. Iron Age sells only to firms, not individuals, which is the crux of the problem. The company gave us a name of an outlet in Wilkes-Barre called "The Shoe Salon" which handles Iron Age shoes. But when we tried to locate the "Shoe Salon," we couldn't find any such store. Several local shoe stores we contacted handle safety shoes, but not the Iron Age line. If you insist on Iron Age, you'll probably have to find a local company which buys that brand shoes for its employees and would be willing to order two pairs for you.

Rangers trade arms, cash for Gaylord Perry

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The poor pitching Texas Rangers gave up three arms and some money Friday for Gaylord Perry, the former Cy Young Award winner and four-time 20-game winner they hope will give them the strength to win their first American League pennant.

In return for the aging Perry, the Rangers sent the youth hungry Indians perennially promising righthander Jim Bibby, righthand curveballer Jackie Brown and triple-A lefthander Rick Waits. The money, apparently in the neighborhood of $100,000, came from the cash they received earlier in the day from the sale of infielder Eddie Brinkman to the New York Yankees.

Perry, 36, and struggling to a 6-9 record in his third year at Cleveland, said he was glad the trade speculation is over. "I don't think I'm in a slump. I might have thrown a bad pitch or two, and I probably was pressing a little, but now that all this is over with, I can just relax and do my job," he said at a news conference before the Indians start a three-game series with the Rangers. "I've played against the Rangers. I know they're a much improved ballclub over what they were a few years ago. I'm looking forward to contributing."

For the Rangers, Perry could provide the pitching stability they need to match their potent attack. The Rangers, the division's dormat until they made a second-place finish under new manager Billy Martin last year, had first place in late May but their pitching fell apart. They quickly fell to fifth, one game under .500.

"Any manager, I think, would definitely like to have a Gaylord Perry on their ballclub," Martin said. "A change of scenery might help him some. Of course, just coming to our ball park is going to help him too. (In Cleveland's park) a mediocre fly ball is out of there."

"Perry's a young 36, he keeps himself in shape, got good habits, he's like Cesar Tovar (the Ranger's 34-year-old leadoff batter)."

"We've been getting all kinds of hitting, all we need to do is get some pitching to go along with it."

The Rangers Friday called up promising infielder Mike Cabbage and pitcher Mike Baesic from Spokane to fill out the major league roster.

Perry, who will join another aging Cy Young Award winner, Ferguson Jenkins, as the Rangers' top starter, had a 21-13 record last year with a 2.51 ERA. Despite his age Perry has thrown more than 300 innings in each of the past three seasons. In 1972 and 1973 he led the league in complete games and in 1972 won the Cy Young with a 24-16 record and a 1.92 ERA.

In Bibby, the Indians get a hard thrower who is trying to make himself into a control pitcher. Brown, in and out of the majors, is trying to stay up for two full years. Waits, 23, was 12-6 with Spokane last year with a 4.41 ERA.

Martin probably was kinder to the Ranger pair in parting that he had been in recent weeks. He had hoped both would develop into strong starters this season.

"Bibby basically might have been the only pitcher who didn't profit from my (six-man) rotation," he said. "He tried as hard as he could."

"Brown has been my mister clutch. He's been the guy that I could count on in long relief situations. I was able to spot start him some last year."

Bibby, 30, who hurled a nohitter last season when his record was 19-19, is 2-6 this season. He would take Perry's spot in the Tribe's starting rotation. Brown, 32, a curveball specialist, would work out of the bullpen and be a spot starter. His is 4-5 this season and was 13-12 last year.

According to sources, the Rangers — hard pressed for cash like the Indians — unloaded Brinkman to get the money needed to acquire Perry, one of the few pitchers in baseball ever to win 20 or more games in both leagues. The Indians must make a $500,000 interest payment soon on the $5.5 million they borrowed from several Cleveland banks.

Besides the Royals, other clubs interested in picking up Perry were the Oakland A's, Boston Red Sox, Yankees and the Baltimore Orioles. All backed off because the price on Perry asked by Indians' Vice President-General Manager Phil Seghi had skyrocketed.

Dobson, Nettles aid Yanks in 2-1 victory over Chisox

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pat Dobson hurled a five-hitter and Graig Nettles knocked in two runs with a home run and a single Friday night to lead the New York Yankees to a 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Dobson struck out six and walked two in boosting his record to 7-5. The right-hander lost his shutout in the ninth on singles by Carlos May and Ken Henderson and Bill Melton's sacrifice fly.

Nettles put New York ahead in the second inning when he slammed his eighth home run of the year off starter and loser Claude Osteen (1-6). Then in the seventh, Thurman Munson led off with a single, went to second on a sacrifice by Rick Dempsey and scored on Nettles' line single to center.

Dobson faced one other threat in the eighth with two out, Brian Downing singled and went to third on Pat Kelly's base hit. After running the count to 2-2 on Jorge Orta, Dobson struck him out to end the inning.

A's, 7-5

DETROIT (UPI) — Joe Rudi's one-out eighth inning double scored Claudell Washington with the winning run and broke up a 5-5 tie Friday night, helping the Oakland A's to a 7-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Rudi's double skipped past the outstretched hands of Tiger centerfielder Ron LeFlore and scored Washington, who had singled, all the way from first. Reggie Jackson greeted reliever John Hiller with another double to score Rudi with an insurance run.

Bert Campaneris doubled, Washington tripled and Jackson hit his 13th home run of the season in the first inning to get Oakland off to a 3-0 start against Joe Coleman, who lost his ninth game in 12 decisions. The A's picked up two more runs in the fifth, mostly due to a throwing error by rookie catcher John Wockenfuss.

Paul Lindblad earned his fifth win without a loss after hurling two hitless innings in relief of Ken Holtzman before giving way to Rolie Fingers in the ninth.

Umbarger, making his first start after 23 relief appearances this season, lost his bid for a shutout in the ninth when he served up back-to-back doubles to Rico Carty and Boog Powell.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Eric Soderholm slammed two home runs — including a three-run blast in the eighth inning — to give the Minnesota Twins a 7-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Friday night.

The Twins broke a 3-3 tie in the eighth when Tony Oliva slugged his second sacrifice fly of the game, scoring Jerry Terrell, who singled, gained second when Bobby Grich booted Rod Carew's grounder, and went to third on Larry Hise's bunt single. Soderholm followed with a 390-foot drive into the leftfield stands scoring behind Carew and Hise.

Carew was 1-for-3 on the night to drop his average .405.

Yankees purchase Brinkman

NEW YORK (UPI) — Shortstop Ed Brinkman, a 13-year veteran with a good field-no hit reputation, was purchased by the New York Yankees from the Texas Rangers Friday for an estimated $100,000, marking the fifth team Brinkman has belonged to since last season.

Brinkman, 33, joins the Yankees after a 10-day stay with the Rangers, who picked him up in a trade with the St. Louis Cardinals for centerfielder Willie Davis.

The slim, 6-0 Brinkman finished the 1974 season with Detroit but was peddled to San Diego in October as part of the Nate Colbert trade. That same day, the Padres sent him to St. Louis for three pitchers.

Brinkman's fielding prowess reached a high point in 1972 when he won the Golden Glove Award and set four major league fielding records for shortstops, including fewest errors (seven) and most consecutive errorless games (72).

He also led American League shortstops in double plays in 1963 and 1970.

Oliver drives in five runs as Pirates scalp Braves

ATLANTA (UPI) — Al Oliver drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a sacrifice fly Friday night to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to an 8-3 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

Seven of Pittsburgh runs came off loser John "Blue Moon" Odom, who was making his second National League start for the Braves. He gave up four runs in four innings in his first outing.

Jim Rooker went 8 1-3 innings for Pittsburgh to notch his fourth victory in seven decisions. He was touched for nine hits, including a home run by Dusty Baker, before giving way to Ramon Hernandez in the ninth.

The Pirates scored twice in the third inning when Rooker singled, went to third on Richie Hebner's single and came across on Oliver's sacrifice fly. Willie Stargell singled and Dave Parker followed with a run-scoring double.

league leading RBI count to 53 and the Cincinnati Reds rapped out a season-high 24 hits Friday afternoon to crush the Chicago Cubs 18-11.

The Reds scored 12 of the runs in the game's final two innings to set a season high for runs in a single game by a National League team.

Bench lashed his 14th home run of the season with two men on in the first to give the Reds a 3-0 lead, and knocked in the 17th run of the game with a double to drive in Joe Morgan. Bench scored the seventh run of the inning and Perez singled the game when Tony Perez singled him home.

Flooding forces second IVB golf postponement

WATER BLAST — Mason Rudolph clowns for photographers Friday by swinging his putter through a pool of water on the fifth fairway of Whitmarsh Valley Country Club, but officials of the IVB Golf Classic didn't think the water was too funny after flooding conditions again forced postponement of the tourney's opening round. 18 holes will be played today and Sunday and the final 36 holes Monday. Rankin fires two-under 70 for 'Lawson's' golf lead

MEDINA, Ohio (UPI) — Judy Rankin, battling a cold and a wayward putter, Friday shot a two-under-par 70 to take the first round lead in the $50,000 Lawson's LPGA Golf Tournament over the windswept Weymouth Golf Club course here.

Miss Rankin had nines of 35-35, over the 6,142-yard, par 35-37-72 course to lead by a stroke from 71 shooters Dot Germain, Murle Breer and Carol Mann.

Rookie Amy Alcott, 19, veteran Marlene Haggie and Jo Ann Washam were at even par 72.

Goldberg obtains San Diego team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Goldberg, a west coast furniture dealer who owns a controlling share in the Denver Nuggets, Friday purchased the San Diego franchise from the American Basketball Association for $2 million.

For that price, Goldberg will receive the present Conquistador players to stock his team.

The acquisition, however, depends upon Goldberg's ability to divest himself of his Nugget stock, which he has held since 1972.

The matter of the Memphis franchise, also league owned, was still undecided at the conclusion of the two-day meeting, but Commissioner Dave DeBusschere said the ABA hoped to dispose of the situation within two weeks.

"There are several parties interested in purchasing the Memphis franchise, both to stay in Memphis and move to Hartford," DeBusschere said. "I'm optimistic that either one or the other will be accepted soon.

"This indicates we're now going with nine strong franchises and we hope with 10. This is the strongest the league has ever been."

Goldberg tried early in 1972 to obtain an expansion franchise for San Diego where he has several retail outlets in the county and makes his home.

When that failed, Goldberg and a group of stockholders purchased the Denver club and turned the franchise into one of the most successful in all basketball.

A total of six schools will compete in the three-night tournament in the LeRoy J. Koehler Fieldhouse.

The other four teams, all from Northeastern Pennsylvania, will be King's College, Wilkes College, the University of Scranton and host East Stroudsburg.

Miss Mann had probably the most consistent round of the day.

Glen Brook Country Club will hold its annual women's member-guest tournament Thursday and after the rains that have played havoc with a women's weekly outing Thursday and with the IVB Golf Classic in Philadelphia, a plea has been issued for good weather.

Members must sign up before Tuesday in the pro shop and also register their guest's handicap. Registration is doubly important after two straight Women's Golf Assn. tourneys have been washed out.

The tourney will begin with coffee and rolls in the clubhouse and the tee-off time with a shotgun start is 9 a.m. In the event of rain, the luncheon will be held at 1 p.m.

Speaking of women's tournaments, Mountain Manor Golf Club will hold its first annual women's invitational Tuesday at the club in Marshalls Creek.

The invitational tourney will feature Mountain Manor and women from four other clubs — Cliff Park of Milford, Port Jervis, Honesdale and Glen Brook. A total of 75 women will be participating.

Coffee and buns open the day at 8 a.m., with tee-off set for 9 a.m. Brunch will be held after nine holes and the luncheon will follow completion of play at 4 p.m.

Evergreen Park Golf Club will also be holding a tournament soon, a members-get-acquainted tournament scheduled for Sunday, June 22.

Tee-off time for the tourney is 8 a.m., with best-ball-of-partners the playing format. Members should sign up at the pro shop by Friday.

Prizes will be awarded for the best scores in both gross and net categories.

Mo-Nom-O-Nock, under new pro Vinnie Ciarlone, will hold an open house at the golf shop Friday night beginning at 6 p.m.

Door prizes, registration for other prizes and a cocktail party will be featured as Ciarlone officially opens his new pro shop at the resort which has just gone public after being private or semi-private until purchased by Fred Warrington.

Ciarlone came over from Buck Hill late in May to take over as Mo-Nom-O-Nock's first golf professional.

'All-Comer' meets to begin June 26

EAST STROUDSBURG — For the fifth straight year, East Stroudsburg State College will sponsor a series of weekly All-Comer track and field meets for boys and girls of all ages beginning Thursday, June 26 at 5:30 p.m.

Six summer meets are scheduled with the second on Wednesday, July 2. The other four will be on consecutive Thursday nights, July 10-17-24-31.

Competition will be run with age groups as follows, 6 and under, 7-8, 9-10, 11-12, 13-14, 15-16, 17-18 and an open classification.

There will be 15 events each week, seven field events (shot put, high jump, long jump, triple jump, pole vault, discus and softball throw) and eight running events (50, 100, 220, for next week's Open at Medinah, Ill.

But at least two Open contenders, Gary Player and Hubert Green, were philosophical about the rescheduling.

"You have to take it in stride," Player, a former Masters and Open champion, said before going to another nearby course for a round of golf. "Everybody is hoping for good weather. You have to be patient and go out and play."

Green, defending champion here, said: "I can't think about next week when this week is still here."

Regarding the conditions caused by the rain, Green added, "A professional golfer should be able to play under all conditions and in all situations. And I'm a professional golfer."

A heavy day-long rain Thursday postponed the opening round and the field of 150 golfers started play at 8 a.m. Friday. But the course was spotted with big pools of water and a normally placid creek was overflowing.

"The overflow of the creek on of La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-3, in the first women's semifinal. "On grass it may be a different story," Miss Evert added.

In the men's semifinals today, defender Bjorn Borg of Sweden will play Adriano Panatta of Italy and Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., will take on Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Miss Evert jumped ahead of her Russian rival, 3-1, in the first set, only to see the 26-year-old Olga take the next three games for a 4-3 lead. But then Chris started racking up the points again and broke service for 4-4 with a pretty backhand drop volley. She held her serve and broke Morozova again for the set when the Russian double faulted twice and hit two forehands 'long after being ahead 40-15, in the game.

In the next set, Miss Evert took only 20 minutes to wrap up the match, allowing her opponent only 12 points.

"In the first set she played very smart," Chris said. "She seemed willing to stay out there all day and got everything back. She had me 4-3 and I knew I had to do something. Once the set was over, I was confident again."

The match with the third-seeded Russian lasted only an hour before a crowd of about 7,000.

Chris said the only problem being in Europe by herself is that her serve "always seems to crack" without her father, Jim Evert, around to coach her.

In the first match, the second-seeded Miss Navratilova needed only 52 minutes to beat Miss Newberry in her bid to take the $10,000 women's first prize.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Racing Association underbid Monmouth Park by $150,000 Friday, but managed to land a $350,000 "match race of the year" between Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure and the unbeaten filly, Ruffian, for Belmont Park on Sunday, July 6.

Actually, the NYRA total reaches $400,000, with the winner of the 3-year-old duel gaining $225,000, the loser taking $125,000 and $50,000 going to the owner of Master Derby for staying out of the race.

"We were prepared to offer a half million dollars for the match race of the year," said Monmouth president Phil Iselin. "But you win some, you lose some. I congratulate the New York Racing Association and feel this competition will be beneficial to all."

NYRA chairman Jack Dreyfus and vice chairman Ogden Mills Phipps said Foolish Pleasure would carry 126 pounds for the 1 1/4-mile race and Ruffian, winner of nine straight starts, 121 pounds for the race in which the NYRA is putting up the entire purse.

Foolish Pleasure's trainer LeRoy Jolley explained the absence of Master Derby in the race by saying the Derby winner would have been at a disadvantage if Preakness winner Master Derby was in the match race.

"With three horses in the race, we'd have to keep an eye on both Master Derby and Ruffian," Jolley said of the proposed trio for the match event. "Two horses would make for a better race."

Golden Chance Farms, owner of Master Derby, then graciously offered to withdraw—and will get $50,000 of the race purse for not standing in the way of the race.

Still unresolved is whether there will be wagering permitted on the race, which network will televise the event and which horse Jacinto Vasquez will ride. The Panamanian jockey is the regular rider for both Foolish Pleasure and Ruffian, but has had a long association with Ruffian's trainer, Frank Whiteley Jr.

Another issue to be decided is if the race will start on the turn of Belmont's 1 1/2-mile oval or from the chute.

Ruffian puts a perfect record on the line against Foolish Pleasure, who has won 11 of 14 and never finished out of the money. Both were 2-year-old horses of the year for their sex.

more showers for the remaining three days of the tournament.

Bob Murphy, winner of the Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic and a 1968 winner here, said he intended to stay, despite the rain-forced delays and "I'm going to win it too."

Murphy predicted there would be some withdrawals from the field because of the increased proximity of the tourney to next Thursday's start of the Open, but PGA officials said there had been no withdrawals Friday.

Dallenbach, Johncock also join field for June 29 race

Foyt, Rutherford head Schaefer 500 entries

LONG POND — Johnny Rutherford and A.J. Foyt, who figure they may have had a chance to catch Bobby Unser if the recent Indianapolis 500 had gone the full route, will get another shot at Bobby U. in the fifth Schaefer 500 at Pocono on June 29.

Rutherford, the defending Schaefer 500 champion, has been entered in his Gatorade McLaren; and Foyt, who won the Schaefer event in 1973 and has sat on the pole for both 500-mile races this season, has entered a pair of Gilmore Coyotes for the final race on the U.S. Auto Club's Triple Crown for Indy cars.

The two veteran Texans — Foyt from Houston, Rutherford from Fort Worth — join Bobby and Al Unser, Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock to bring to six the number of Indianapolis winners in the field for the $400,000 Championship event on Pocono's 2.5-mile trioval.

Rutherford, who was seeking a second consecutive win at Indy, finished second in the rain-shortened event; and Foyt, who was looking for an unprecedented fourth win in the event, was third. Both were on the same lap with Bobby U. when the race was called after 174 laps.

Rutherford started fifth in last year's Schaefer 500; and while he led a total of just 17 laps, the last 12 proved to be the most important. He took the lead when Wally Dallenbach's car suffered a blown engine, and he finished a lap in front of the field, earning $92,700.

He has been extremely consistent at Pocono. In four races, he has run 792 of a possible 800 laps, having finished seventh in 1971, second in 1972, and fifth in 1973. No driver has a better overall record.

Foyt is one of just three drivers to have completed the race's 200 laps in two different years. He finished third in the 1971 inaugural; and after missing the 1972 race, he won in 1973 when Roger McCluskey ran out of fuel on the final lap while in the lead.

Wally Dallenbach, who came within 12 laps of winning the Schaefer 500 last year, and Johncock, the 1973 Indianapolis 500 winner, have been listed as the drivers of Simmast Specials entered in the race.

The Patrick Racing team, and its veteran chief mechanic, George Bignotti, have entered three cars in the event on the 2.5-mile trioval, but Dallenbach and Johncock are the only drivers named on the entry.

Both Dallenbach and Johncock are well-known speedsters. In last year's race at Pocono, Dallenbach started third, Johncock fourth; and in the Indianapolis 500 last month, Johncock started second, while Dallenbach has the fourth quickest qualification run but started back in the pack because he made the run the second day.

For Dallenbach, the former E. Brunswick, N.J., resident who has transplanted himself and his family in Basalt, Colo., this year's Schaefer 500 will have special meaning — for two reasons.

Last year, he appeared on his way to certain victory at Pocono. He led from the 163rd to the 187th lap; but when he slowed down his pace in order to conserve fuel, the engine blew, placing him a disappointing 10th.

In the recent Indianapolis 500, he also seemed to have things well in hand with less than 40 laps to run. But when he was forced to slow down because of a damaged tire, the Drake-Goosen-Sparks engine on the Simmast Wildcat leaned out and burned a piston, putting him out of competition.

Johncock also suffered some hard luck at Indianapolis. After waging daily speed battles with A.J. Foyt during practice, he qualified second. At the start of the race, he beat Foyt into the first turn to grab the lead. The day was a short one, though. He retired after just 11 laps with a blown engine.

Last year's Schaefer 500 finishes were the best ever for both Dallenbach — he had other finishes of 15th, 14th, and 29th — and for Johncock, who was one of six drivers to hold the lead in the race, winding up third. His other finishes included a 20th, a 22nd and a 14th.

Tickets for the June 29 Schaefer 500 are available at all Ticketron outlets and through the Raceway box office, Box 500, Mt. Pocono, 18344.

Energy crisis catches up with 24 Hours of Le Mans

LE MANS, France (UPI) — The energy crisis has caught up with the 24 hours of Le Mans, once the world's premier sports car race and now destined to run under drastically new rules.

One are the big booming battles between the factory entered cars of Ferrari, Porsche, Matra and Ford which over the past 10 years attracted some 400,000 spectators to this two-day speed fest.

When the 55 cars pass the starter's flag in a rolling

Indianapolis-style start today, the emphasis will no longer be on outright speed or even endurance but getting the most miles per gallon out of the machines.

The winner will still be the car which covers the greatest distance by 4 p.m. Sunday, but on its way it will only be able to take on gas once every 20 laps or 169.3 miles, while another new rule will allow teams to change any part of the car except the chassis.

The gas rule means that the heavy foot on the floorboard up the four miles Mulsanne straight are over unless a driver wants the embarrassment of running out of fuel. The new parts rule means the race is no longer the endurance test where each part had to last 24 hours since a whole new engine can be fitted, if the mechanics are fast enough, to enable a car to finish.

To meet the m.p.g. requirements the Gulf-Ford's engines have been tuned down from 475 to 370 horsepower.

Zeroing in HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Director Marty Ritt signed Zero Mostel to costar with Woody Allen in "The Front" for Columbia Pictures.

BORED STAR — Henry Winkler, left, as Fonzie, in the role of Hamlet, and Donny Most, as Ralph, playing Laertes, have at one another, watched by a pretty handmaiden, during a performance in their church's annual Shakespeare festival production in 'A Star Is Bored' on the ABC Television Network's 'Happy Days,' Tuesday 8 to 8:30 p.m.

Artificial gut aids digestive disorder

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A doctor has developed an "artificial gut" treatment that patients can administer to themselves at home for permanent intestinal disorders.

The treatment is used to nourish patients whose diseased intestines no longer will absorb into the blood stream food taken by normal eating.

Dr. Belding Scribner, 54, a professor of medicine at the University of Washington in Seattle said the development is an outgrowth of the arterial-venous dialysis treatment he devised to save kidney patients and allow them to lead near-normal lives.

An exhibit used by Scribner at a medical meeting to spread the word of the process included pictorial presentations showing an elderly woman wasting away because of a digestive tract disorder and in a robust condition after the artificial gut treatment. A woman patient exhibited the procedure.

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Poisoning potential

I was shocked when a four-year-old child was brought to my hospital after swallowing lye. Somehow, these accident are thought to occur only in impoverished social circumstances, where educational campaigns have been particularly ineffective.

This, however, occurred in a family of intelligent, well-educated persons who were well aware of potential hazards in the home. It was inconceivable to them that the lye solution, kept in a milk bottle in the garage, would ever be tempting to their child.

It is surprising that such avoidable accidents still occur despite the most intensive safety campaigns by Public Health officials.

Adults, too, occasionally swallow toxic or poisonous substances.

All insecticides, pesticides, paint removers and cleaning fluids must be kept in original containers, and well away from the grasping hands of a curious child. Youngsters can easily be tempted to swallow any one of these substances when they have been transferred to a soft drink or milk bottle.

Fortunately, the child brought to my hospital was treated quickly, and the lye burn in the mouth was minimal.

All large cities have a poison control center. Immediate information can be obtained from them for the treatment of all kinds of poisonings. They can be most helpful if the ingredients are known. Areas remote from poison control centers can get this information through their hospitals.

It is wise to examine the skin area after the hot water bag has been in place for a few minutes.

DR COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of The Pocono Record.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — An analytical look at your position may indicate some new avenue to pursue in a tricky domestic situation. In any event, avoid anxiety.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Unexpected complications may call for a sudden change in travel plans. Don't fret. Trip, as arranged, could have been disappointing.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Careful analysis, good judgment and understanding of the temperaments of associates will be required to make this a smooth-running day. Not too difficult for the intuitive Gemini!

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Especially favored now: teachers, students, homemakers. A good day, too, for those engaged in outdoor pursuits.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — Some new suggestions or propositions may be offered. Study each carefully and accept or reject on the basis of enduring worth — not immediate returns.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — A few "surprises" indicated — some which will please; others which may not. Take all in stride: Things will work out in the long run.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Tighten reins a bit to observe with more surety and ease where you are headed. Nothing should sway you from high principles, but do avoid stubbornness.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — Watch trends and join forces with those who have a stake in the common welfare. Your priceless energy can be of great help.

SAGITTARIUS (November 24 to December 21) — A fine day! You may be the recipient of special favors, tokens of good will or other unexpected benefits.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Stars warn against vacillating, changing plans or projects before they have been given a fair chance to prove themselves. Steady does it!

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — The odds are against you right now, so it's no time to tackle the opposition. Postpone action until Tuesday when you'll have a better chance of getting what you want.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — Be cautious in making directives and taking others' feelings for granted. Alertness and flexibility of thought will help you to safer, quicker conclusions.

YOU BORN TODAY, are imaginative, brilliant of intellect and dexterous of hand. Your versatility and love of life are outstanding, but you must learn to curb tendencies toward hypersensitivity and restlessness. You are idealistic and always aim high, but you're not a daydreamer. In fact, you abhor idleness and, once you've chosen the career which appeals to you most, will spare no effort to reach the top — which you usually do, since you are a realist and your goals are always within the realm of possibility. Fields in which you could attain your greatest successes: writing, theatrical direction, music, journalism (as reporter or editor), research; in the business world, as broker or dealer in commodities. Birthdate of: Harriet Beecher Stowe, author "Uncle Tom's Cabin"; John McCormack, singer; Burl Ives, theatrical entertainer.

We began the week wishing a Happy Birthday to Fred Waring . . . so it seems rather apropos that we conclude this June Jubilee Week celebrating another birthday. THIS one to two "gracious ladies" who have been our "love" for YEARS.

You know them both WELL! They've been feted in song and story . . . they've been the subject of artists and craftsmen . . . they have inspired men and women to heights they may never have believed possible, and they stand today as the very symbol of America and freedom.

Today is the birthday of the Old Glory . . . "The Star Spangled Banner" . . . "The Grand Old Flag" . . . "The Stars and Stripes Forever"; and the gracious lady who arrived from France ninety years ago today to grace the harbor to New York City . . . lifting her lamp to welcome the "tired and poor, the wretched refuse yearning to breathe free." They are both symbols of what it means to live in this wonderful land . . . and our June graduates who step out into the world of adulthood might well think a minute on just that fact. How truly remarkable this country IS . . . the opportunities that await for those who strive for the highest ideals and aspirations; and for the parents of these young people to realize that freedom in this land means the very freedom for their young people to choose their path . . . to pursue what will mean happiness to them.

Today . . . look up at the flag, flying in the soft June breeze . . . be proud! It IS a GREAT country, and Wyckoff's join the nation in celebrating the birthday of the "Stars and Stripes" and "Miss Liberty"! Long may they live as the symbols of the "land of the free and the home of the brave!"

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI ...
Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijstafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.
The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar. Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selecta," exotic-blue House Specialty. The restaurant features an authentic Indonesian Rice-Table buffet on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, by reservation only. Other cuisine may be ordered ahead. Private parties of 8 or more on other days. Phone for mailing of information/menu card.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776:

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

English merchants and tradesmen were quick to realize that the Stamp Act dispute with the colonies had ominous implications for them. Riots and political arguments meant an interruption of business; nonimportation and nonconsumption agreements would inevitably hurt profitable trade with North America.

British merchants were opposed to the Stamp tax. But their voices had not prevailed when the ministry of George Grenville pushed this measure through Parliament with a large majority in March 1765.

Few, if any, anticipated the reaction of America. But the riots against stamp distributors, loud protests against the Stamp Act's constitutionality, and strong economic pressures combined to change the thinking of many Britons. Not the least of influences was the agitation of British merchants themselves.

Traders and manufacturers learned about nonimportation and nonconsumption agreements from American newspapers and business associates, but even before this they began to organize themselves in order to force a repeal of the Stamp Act. In December 1765, London merchants formed a committee to mobilize opinions and deluge Parliament with petitions.

Barlow Trecothick, chairman of the committee, met with the Marquis of Rockingham (head of the new ministry) to explain the merchants' position. Trecothick then drafted a circular letter to some thirty trading and manufacturing towns in Great Britain. He called attention to the distressing consequences of loss of the North American trade and the necessity of working together to promote the Prosperity of Trade and Manufactures.

The result was not slow in coming. Parliament received many petitions from numerous cities, whose merchants and manufacturers declared that the Stamp Act would have a ruinous effect on them. In an address to the House of Commons, London merchants pointed out that they had "annually exported very large quantities of British manufactures" to North America; and that this trade "so beneficial to the State, and so necessary for the Support of Multitudes, now lies under such Difficulties and Discouragements, that nothing less than utter ruin is apprehended."

Praying for relief from economic miseries, the merchants had little concern with arguments about the constitutionality of the Stamp Act. Not so with the Marquis of Rockingham.

Entirely willing to listen to the pleas of the merchants, the ministry was faced with the ugly fact that the colonists had challenged the right of Parliament to enact the Stamp tax.

Although he was sympathetic to the wishes of the merchants, Rockingham was also sensitive to the feeling of most Britons that the authority of Parliament over the colonies had to be upheld.

The problem was — to put it succinctly — how could the grievances of the merchants be redressed, and the honor of Parliament sustained at the same time?

Deluged with demands that the Stamp Act be repealed, and confronted by the fact that rebellious colonists had nullified the measure, the ministry reached a decision in January 1766. Repeal of the Stamp Act was agreed to, but it must be accompanied by a strong assertion of the power of Parliament.

The wheels of government turned very slowly in early 1766 for the unhappy Rockingham ministry. Pressures on the government mounted as the merchants demanded repeal; angry newspaper writers sharply criticized the ministry for not upholding the law; in full oratorical splendor William Pitt thundered in The House of Commons, "I rejoice that America has resisted"; and colonial agents (especially Benjamin Franklin) testified that the colonists did not have enough money to pay the Stamp tax for a single year.

A bill for the repeal of the Stamp Act passed in March 1766, but, in another measure, the Declaratory Act, Parliament asserted that it had full authority to pass laws for America "in all cases whatsoever."

No one paid much attention to the Declaratory Act.

Unbounded joy was expressed by the colonists when they got news of the repeal. The happiness of the London merchants was hardly any less, as can be seen in the accompanying cartoon.

1781 newspaper ad for the "Elizabeth Town Stage-Wagon. Two days to Philadelphia."

THE REPEAL, or the Funeral Procession, of MISS AMERICA-STAMP.

This engraving is a satirical British cartoon published in London in 1766. In the funeral procession of "Miss America-Stamp" the grief-stricken figure carrying the coffin is George Grenville, the author of the Stamp Act which died so young. Flags, symbols, inscriptions and skulls refer to earlier events or enactments which were "All of a Stamp." Along the Thames are warehouses filled with goods which grateful merchants (now that the Stamp Act had been repealed) expected to ship to the American colonies. Vessels that are pictured bear the names of the ministers, Lord Rockingham, the Duke of Grafton, and H. Seymour Conway, who had worked strenuously for the repeal of the Stamp Act. The arts of engraving and cartooning were generally more advanced in England than in the colonies. In an era when newspapers and other printed matter were mostly devoid of much illustrative material, engravings such as this added graphic appeal to life.

Rt. 611, Delaware Water Gap

Narrow, winding Rte. 402 features pretty scenery

PECKS POND — Wild flow-ers line old Rte. 402 at this time of year. Mountain Laurel and Rhododendron are beginning to bloom. The natural beauty remains unspoiled and civilization has made a few en-croachments.

Rte. 402, which begins at Marshalls Creek and ends about 20 miles north of there at

Rte. 6 near Hawley, is a nar-row, two-lane road that climbs over gently rolling hills and passes through the Delaware State Forest.

Few homes and fewer busi-nesses are along the road which passes a few small lakes and ponds, most notably Pecks Pond. The Lucky Dot Hotel and Pecks Pond Store are there, serving anglers who come for pickerel, bass, perch and black crappies.

Pecks Pond Store owner Fred Hesse reports that the fishing is "terrific" in the pond at this time of year and that ice fishing in the winter yields similar results. He shows visi-tors a wall display of photo-graphs of pleased fishermen with their catches.

The fishing is good even though the Pennsylvania Fish Commission does little stock-ing of the pond. Pecks Pond Store and the nearby Lucky Dot Hotel both rent boats and sell live bait. A Pennsylvania fishing license is required.

At Pecks Pond Store, the un-prepared but prospective fish-erman can rent or buy tackle. Cabins or rooms are available and a shop with a lunch counter is there, full of gifts and groceries.

The 300-acre pond was man-made. Marshland was dammed for logging and later the pond provided ice each winter that was stored across Rte. 402 in an ice house no longer standing.

No power boats are used on the pond, but canoes, row boats and paddle boats are rented by the hour or by the day. Marsh-lands and swamps pocked with decaying tree stumps adjoin the pond and can be seen at other places along Rte. 402.

The road passes some pri-vate hunting and fishing clubs and a few camps. Near Mar-shalls Creek, there are some small resorts but further up the little traveled road, the signs of people are less fre-quent and large ferns grow be-neath mixed stands of deci-duous trees.

A few gravel roads branch off from Rte. 402 and some of these are marked with signs that indicate they lead to hik-ing trails which cut through the woodlands of the state forest. Travelers heading north that reach the end of Rte. 402 are near Lake Wallenpaupack.

Starting from Stroudsburg, the ride up Rte. 402 is perfect for an afternoon scenic drive, as there are several good re-turn routes that branch like fingers and return to Strouds-burg via Canadensis or Mount Pocono.

A returning motorist might follow Rte. 390, passing through Promised Land State Park and Canadensis, or take Rte. 507 along the shore of Lake Wallenpaupack and get on Rtes. 191 or 447, which go south to the Stroudsburgs.

Surfing in the Poconos? Sure — with special sailboat

SAIL SURFING — Partially hidden by the sail, Skipper Harrison demonstrates gentle art of wind surfing — creaming along on a sailboard without a rudder, using the body's weight to direct the board where you want it to go. (Staff photo by Joe Rattman)

POCONO PINES — The Poconos have no seashore and the lakes here have no waves. Yet, people are surfing.

Well, not exactly. They are windsurfing, a sport that began only six years ago. Windsurfers look like a crossbreed between a sailboat and a surfboard.

The craft is 12 feet long and has no rudder. It is steered by using the sail which, unlike a sailboat, is not fixed, and is positioned by the individual on board, who is always standing — that is, unless he falls overboard. Mastering the craft is not easy.

"It's a sport that you have to learn how to do. Even an experienced sailor does not just jump on board and just do it," said Skipper Harrison, manager of the Pocono Boathouse.

Windsurfers are faster than sailboats and have been clocked at speeds faster than 20 m.p.h., Harrison said. The thrills are greater when windsurfing than when waterskiing, he said.

Not everyone agrees about the safety of the sport. Windsurfing is prohibited on state-owned lakes in Pennsylvania, which is the only state with such discouraging legislation, Harrison said.

The high incidence of capsizing of the boats is the written reason for prohibition of windsurfing on state park lakes, according to Kenneth Fultz, superintendent of Tobyhanna state park.

Harrison, who is an expert at the sport, recently demonstrated windsurfing before Fultz on Tobyhanna Lake without once falling. He learned windsurfing before learning how to sail and claims that his windsurfing experience gives him an advantage in any sailing race.

Last summer, Harrison raced in a national windsurfing competition at Henderson Harbor, N.Y., placing sixth in his weight class. His wife, Karen, got seventh place in the women's competition.

Windsurfers, weighing 65 pounds, are very maneuverable if piloted by an experienced person. A craft with a smaller sail is made that is good for high wind conditions or for learning.

"Windsurfing is pure sailing because you don't have a rudder," Harrison said. It is said to have the mental requirements of sailing and to require the physical skills of surfing. Harrison said he plans to teach windsurfing this summer, probably using Pocono Crest Lake.

"I can guarantee that any student can windsurf in two three-hour lessons," Harrison said. He teaches sailing already.

The U.S. Coast Guard omits windsurfing from its list of water recreational activities for which life jackets are required, Harrison said. The wearing of a bulky life jacket actually interferes with the maneuvering of the craft, he said.

However, Joseph Bartley, a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, which has jurisdiction over inland waters, said windsurfers, like pilots of all watercraft, must have life preservers with them.

Because the sail of a windsurfer is not fixed, letting go of it means that it will fall into the water.

"The boat cannot go anywhere without you holding the sail up," Harrison explained. If the sail falls into the water, it drags, functioning as a "sea anchor," Harrison said.

This characteristic of windsurfers contrasts with sailboats, which may sail away from the pilot if he falls overboard, thus giving him nothing to hold to keep afloat if he has no life jacket.

Windsurfers are manufactured only by Windsurfer International of Marina Del Ray, Cal., holders of an exclusive patent. They sell for about $450, which is about $200 less than inexpensive sailboats.

The Pocono Boathouse, located in a big old barn behind the Pocono Pines Post Office off Rte. 940, rents and sells various non-power driven water craft and also rents bicycles. The bikes, including bicycles built for two, are available by the hour, day or weekend.

Pocono theaters gear up for summer stock season

By JOE RATTMAN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — The summer theater season is getting started in the Poconos with comedies, musicals and children's plays scheduled at the five area playhouses.

Plays have already opened at Fernwood's "Limelight Dinner Theater" and at the Bethany Colony Playhouse. At the Limelight, "I Do, I Do," a musical about marriage, opened last Saturday.

The evening at the Limelight begins at 6 p.m. with cocktails and a five course dinner served by singing waiters and waitresses. The play is full of songs, dancing and laughs.

Broadway musicals and comedies are planned for the year round Limelight theater and the summer season emphasizes musical theater. Season tickets are available.

During July and August, the Limelight is planning weekend performances of children's musicals. Fernwood is about 10 miles north of Stroudsburg on Rte. 209.

Bethany Colony opened a 12-week summer season Wednesday with "The Fantasticks."

The play, America's longest run musical, will be performed through June 22 by the Hollywood Professional Theater Ensemble.

The 14-member ensemble will be presenting four musicals and two comedies. Each production runs for two weeks, Wednesday through Saturdays. Curtain time is 8:30 and tickets range from $3.50 to $5.

Opening next, on June 25, is "Butterflies Are Free." Bethany Colony Playhouse is three miles north of Honesdale on Rte. 670.

A small theater at East Stroudsburg State College (ESSC), The Second Act, is opening its second season next Thursday with "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds."

The Paul Zindel play will be performed June 19 through 22 and 26 through 29. It has an all-woman cast. Later this summer, "The Boy Friend," a musical, and "Ugaga and Ewawa," a children's play written by Second Act director Joseph J. Brennan, are scheduled.

Performers in Second Act plays are students enrolled for credit in summer theater workshops at ESSC. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and tickets cost $2.50.

The mystery musical "Something's Afoot" based on Agatha Christie's "Ten Little Indians" is the scheduled season opener at the Pocono Playhouse. The theater, newly renamed the "Rowena Stevens Pocono Playhouse" after the former manager who died recently, starts its 29th season June 24.

Pat Carroll, the television performer, is cast in the lead role, playing an amateur detective. Plays scheduled for later dates include "Send Me No Flowers" and "The Boy Friend."

The playhouse box office is open daily and mail order reservations are being taken. The straw hat theater is in Mountainhome on Playhouse Lane just off Rtes. 191 and 390.

Last to open this summer theater season will be Tanglwood Dinner Theater at Taffon. The theater starts its third season June 28 with Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite." One of Simon's most successful comedies, the play will run through July 6.

"Plaza Suite" will be directed by John Sedwick, the director of the Emmy Award winning television show "The Edge of Night."

Tanglwood, the first dinner theater in the area, is located in Tanglwood Ski Lodge overlooking Lake Wallenpaupack.

Performances are scheduled nightly, except Mondays, through August 31.

Tickets, which include dinner and the show, range in price from $11 to $14. The theater is on Rte. 390, three miles north of I-84.

Further information on individual productions will appear throughout the summer in this Fun Guide.

'Marigolds' scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — Theatre and Spanish major Paul Zindel's "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" will be the opening presentation of East Stroudsburg State College's Second Act Summer Theatre to be performed at the Second Arts and Music graduate from Chester, appears as Ruth, Tillie's sister. Sally Swope, a junior Speech Communication and Theatre Arts major from Beaverdale, Pa., is cast as Sue Lynch, a graduate student in Elementary Education from Easton, who appears as Janice Vickery, Tillie's rival in a high school science fair.

Dr. J.J. Brennan, "Marigolds" director, is also the director for the Summer Theatre program. Philip Hendren, an assistant professor from the ESSC Speech Communications and Theatre Arts department, will serve as Technical Director.

Boating, canoeing opportunities abound in Poconos

Marina operator launches runabout into Lake Wallenpaupack

By JOE RATTMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

PAUPACK — Boating and canoeing opportunities abound in the Poconos on the waters of small, private, man-made lakes, on moderate-sized state park lakes, on the huge 5,700-acre Lake Wallenpaupack and along the Delaware River.

The 13-mile long Lake Wallenpaupack, on which more than 3,080 boats are moored, is the most popular place for boating in the area. All types of boats, except houseboats and air propelled craft, are used on the lake.

There are several marinas along the 52-mile shoreline where boats can be launched for a small charge. The marinas rent mooring facilities and some have winter storage available.

Be careful

Motorized boats are also allowed in the Delaware River, but caution is advised because the depth of the river varies greatly. At some places the water is smooth and deep, as in the Delaware Water Gap, but the river at other places becomes swift and boulders cause rapids. Such conditions occur near Belvidere, N. J.

Boats with gasoline engines may not be used on state park lakes, but low power electric motors are permitted. Many lakes were created in recent years in vacation home developments, but use of the lakes is restricted to home owners and motorized boats are generally not permitted.

At a few of the private lakes, such as Peck's Pond, row boats and canoes are rented for pleasure or fishing.

Area lakes and the Delaware River are suitable for sailing, which is becoming increasingly popular. On weekends in July, sailing races are held on Lake Wallenpaupack. The lake is clearly the boating capital of the area.

The Pennsylvania Fish Commission has an access point on Lake Wallenpaupack where boats may be launched without charge. It is along Rte. 590 two miles west of the junction with Rte. 6.

Services available

Boat rentals, sales and service are available at Lake Wallenpaupack. The lake is great for water skiing and lessons are available at White Beauty View Resort. Scuba diving equipment and lessons are also available.

Kite skiing is discouraged on the lake for safety reasons but can be done if a special permit is obtained. Windsurfing is allowed on Lake Wallenpaupack, as it is on other privately owned lakes, but it is not permitted on state owned lakes administered by the parks department or fish commission.

On Lake Wallenpaupack, there is no horsepower limit on the motor boats but all motorized boats must be registered. Registration, costing $4 for boats less than 16 feet long and $6 for longer boats, can be arranged at the marinas.

Out-of-state registrations are good in Pennsylvania for 60 days. It is no longer necessary to register non-commercial boats with Pennsylvania Power and Light Co., the lake's owner.

"Boating offers something for everybody," said Jon Garlock, owner of Paupack Marina. Boats are available in any price bracket, he said.

Not cheap

New and used boats of various sizes are sold. Sailboats are available for $300 and up. New outboard motor boats start at $2,000 and range upwards.

The cost of boating is not so great, Garlock said, because it is spread over several years after the initial investment. Boats will last several years if properly maintained, he said.

Some local people are saying that Lake Wallenpaupack is getting crowded with boats, Garlock said, but disagreeing with that assessment.

"There's room for everybody to do their thing," said David A. Boeshore, Lake Wallenpaupack Association executive director. The lake is large enough so that the people fishing, water skiing, pleasure riding and sailing do not interfere with each other, he said.

"Sailboats are becoming extremely popular," Garlock said. "There seems to be a very definite trend toward sailing."

Business better

Business at Paupack Marina is much better than last year when sales were hurt by the gasoline shortage and the generally weak state of the national economy, Garlock said.

The cost of marine fuel increased along with the prices of other types of petroleum products and further increases are expected in future months. Dockside supplies are allocated but are adequate to meet demand. Gas costs are a few cents higher than at automobile service stations.

Outdoor boat storage is available at all of the marinas and Tanglwood Marina has a large storage building capable of keeping 130 boats under cover. The boats are stacked four high and are placed in their pigeon holes by a large forklift truck.

Pleasure rides, great for picture taking, are given on big slow-moving cruisers that leave regularly from Tanglwood and White Beauty Marinas. The 38-foot craft at White Beauty Marina may be chartered for evening party cruises for groups of up to 30 people.

Safety first

Life preservers, known as Personal Flotation Devices (PFD's), are required by law in Pennsylvania for all vessels, not just motor boats. One is needed for every person on board and a water skier is counted as a person on board.

Children under nine years old and any person who does not know how to swim is required to be wearing the PFD, which must be Coast Guard-approved. Ski belts are not adequate.

It should be noted that canoeists need PFDs. Parts of the Delaware can be very dangerous for persons not experienced with maneuvering through rapids. The section called Foul Rift near Belvidere is considered the most dangerous stretch along the entire Delaware and it should not be attempted by inexperienced canoeists.

A map and other information for canoeists is available through written request to: District Engineer, U.S. Army Engineer District, Corps of Engineers, Philadelphia, Pa. 19106.

Free launching

Canoes and boats can be launched in the Delaware at Milford Beach, Rte. 209 at Milford, at Smithfield Beach, on the River Road north of Shawnee Village, and at the Kittatinny Point Information Center, on Rte. 80 adjacent to the Delaware Water Gap toll bridge. There is no charge.

Three area state parks, Tobyhanna, Gouldsboro and Promised Land, have lakes. Facilities available include boat launching, seasonal mooring and boat rentals.

To launch a boat at a state park, a permit is needed unless the owner has a state registration. The $2 permit is good for a whole season. Seasonal mooring permits cost $10.

There are other exceptions to the state park boating charges and boaters should check with the park superintendent.

College's summer theater begins its 'Second Act'

EAST STROUDSBURG — Summer theater at East Stroudsburg State College (ESSC) is entering its second season with student enrollment in theater up and broader community involvement, both on stage and in the audience, expected.

"In the past couple of years it's really built up and blossomed — with all of this equipment we now have," said Joseph J. Brennan, theater professor and director of the summer productions.

The college completed extensive renovations last year of the campus theater, the Second Act. Theater workshops for graduate or undergraduate credit are being offered during the three summer sessions again this year.

Enrollments differ somewhat for the three sessions so the casts of each production will vary. The workshop is designed to help students to develop all of the skills needed to individually produce a play, Brennan said.

"Last year, response was es-entially from the student body," he said, but this year participation by ten or more persons beyond college age is expected.

Anyone can register for the workshops for $31 per credit and already, Brennan expects persons ranging in age from 13 to 68 to take part.

Students learn all phases of theater production and the workshop is divided into groups so that students can pursue their particular interests in acting, set design, lighting or makeup.

The workshop prepares students to enter professional theater, educational theater or community theater, Brennan said. Between 30 and 50 students are expected, an increase of 30 to 35 per cent over last year, he said.

"We feel that this is an alternative to commercial theater," Brennan said. An attempt is made to select plays that both are entertaining and have intellectual merit, he said.

The Second Act is a theater in the round, meaning that the audience sits on three or four sides of the stage. The first summer production to be performed is "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" by Paul Zindel. It will run June 19 through 22 and 26 through 29.

The workshop is offered through the Speech Communications and Theater Arts Dept.

Three theater related majors are possible at ESSC. Undergraduates can get a bachelor of arts degree in speech communications or theater arts or a bachelor of science degree in communications with a theater emphasis.

Though small, the Second Act allows for versatility in staging. It allows for audience-performer interaction. The air conditioned theater seats about 100 people.

Brennan, who holds a doctorate from New York University in theater, has seen the theater program grow during his 15 years on the ESSC faculty. "I'm especially interested in children's theater."

Nature lectures scheduled

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Wild Animal Farm, rte. 611 just north of Stroudsburg, has announced a program of bi-centennial activities for the summer season.

June 14 and July 26 — prehistoric oddities at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm.

June 21 and Aug. 2 — flightless birds.

June 28 — Antlers and horns.

July 12 — marsupials.

During the week of Aug. 11-17, the farm will have an exhibit of black and white photographs of wildlife. Anyone wishing to enter pictures in the exhibit must adhere to the following rules:

— Any subject relating to wildlife will be accepted.

— Photographs must be black and white eight-by-10 inches mounted on mat board, 12 x 14 inches.

— There is no limit on numbers of entries by individuals.

— Each picture must have the entrant's name and address on the back. If the entrant wants the picture (s) returned, a stamped, self-addressed envelope must accompany the entry.

Walk and draw

Guided nature walks that will include lessons in sketching and drawing from professional artists will be conducted on Saturdays and Sundays in July and August. These art nature walks are free and art supplies will be provided without charge.

The walks will be led by David Campbell, a water color artist from Gloucester, Mass., and by New York artist Lia Shepherd. Registration for the walks is possible as late as the day they are scheduled.

"The artists were chosen for their sensitivity to nature as well as their artistic excellence," said AEF spokesman Joel Levy. During the art nature walks, the artists will talk about both the artistic and naturalistic aspects of the drawing subjects, he said.

The art nature walks were not offered last year. For information about the time and place the walks will begin, persons interested should call the Kittatinny Point Information Center at 201-496-4458.

Concerts to begin

The "Water Gap Concerts," popular last year among park visitors and local residents alike, will begin Friday, July 4 with "Music of Early America." It is a bicentennial event being held outdoors at 7:30 p.m. at the Watergate Recreation Site on Old Mine Road about 10 miles north of the Delaware Water Gap on the New Jersey side of the Delaware River.

Parking at Watergate is adequate and it is recommended the concert goers bring blankets or folding chairs on which to sit. On Saturday night at 7:30 p.m., the "Bach Collegium of New York" will appear at Watergate.

The Bach program is the first of a regular Saturday evening series at Watergate that will run through August 30. All Water Gap Concerts are free. On the last three Fridays in July, additional classical music concerts will be held in the restored church at Millbrook village, a short distance north of Watergate on the Old Mine Road.

The Water Gap Concerts are directed by harpsichordist Edward Brewer, who frequently performs with the guest musicians.

The AEF is a non-profit organization funded by the Union of Independent Colleges of Art, the National Park Service, the N.J. State Council for the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

14 students chosen

Students from each of the colleges that comprise the independent union are selected to spend a semester studying in the DWGNRA. A maximum of 14 students are chosen for the program. They get a full semester of credit for the 15-week program.

The students come to study landscape painting in the park but instruction in several other types of art is also offered. Independent study is also possible and the students are tutored by the resident artists.

Artists in the residence fellowship program are selected by a national review committee and spend from three months to one year at the foundation. The fellowship program was developed for professional painters who want to reorient their work to landscape art.

An exhibition of paintings of the Delaware Water Gap and nearby river scenes that will be held at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington this summer was planned and researched by artists at AEF.

The paintings, assembled from the collections of museums all over the country, are too valuable and delicate to bring to the park, but a slide presentation of the show is being planned for the benefit of DWGNRA visitors. Final arrangements have not been made, but it is expected that the show will be offered at the Resource Center in Wallpack Center.

At the Corcoran Gallery, the gap exhibition will open July 11 and run through August 25.

ABOUT AN EPICUREAN SAFARI . . .

Dining at "Selecta," 6 miles south of Stroudsburg, is like going to a private party abroad. The yellow sign on Rt. 191 reads only: "SELECTA (215) 588-1042 Rijsttafel." A shale driveway leads through woods to a field-stone mansion, the parking lot studded with out-of-state cars.

The host, a spice-importer from Java, introduces the gourmets in the oak-beamed Rattan Bar. Except for stubborn martini-drinkers, most enjoy the "Selecta-tail," exotic-blue House Specialty.
